Foot Ball Team Beaten.

The Emporium foot ball team met defeat at the hands of the St. Marys boys on Saturday last, at the grounds of the latter. While the Emporium boys each played a good individual game, they lacked the experience of team work. The game was fiercely contested from start to finish, the St. Marys boys winning by a score of eleven to nothing, only after playing the hardest game this season. The main feature of the game was a seventy-two yard punt of Howard's for Emporium boys in the last half of the game. A return game will be played here in the near future and the boys should be accorded the patronage of the people in their athletic endeavors. The line up of Saturday's game was as follows:

St. Marys.		Emporium.
Holes,	Left End	Hemphill
Bauer,	Left Tackle	Schweikart
Gist,	Left Guard	Thomas, Douglas
Auman,	Center	Billings
Croak,	Right Guard	Hockley. Geo

Kragle,	Right End	Farrell
Hartman,	Quarter-back	McCaslin.
Ritchie,	Right Half-back	Drum
Rogan,	Left Half-back	Howard
Leible, Capt.	Full-back	Hockley, Capt.
Hartman,	Manager	Beattie

Touchdowns—Leible, one; Rogan, one. Goals—Leible. Time of halves—twenty and fifteen minutes. Referee—McCabe. Umpire—Billings.

Emporium Roller Mill.

Extensive improvements have been going on at the Emporium Roller Mills during the past two months. New machinery throughout the plant has been installed at a heavy expense, making the popular Emporium Mills equal to any in this country of the same capacity. The Messrs. Felt have for years covered a wide area and the capacity of their two mills (Olean and Emporium) has been taxed to their utmost, to meet their trade. Their brands of flour, as well as feed, continues to increase in popularity.

Valuable Sheep.

W. R. Johnson, one of Bryan Hill's industrious farmers, has entered the sheep raising business quite extensively. He recently purchased a full blooded Shrapshire Ram, weighing 250 pounds, from Mr. Campbell, a noted breeder in Canada. Mr. Johnson intends to enlarge that branch of his farm, believing there is money in the same.

Large Bear.

Jacob Andrus yesterday killed a monster black bear on Hicks Run and brought the same to Emporium this morning for shipment to New York. Bears are quite plentiful in this county this fall. A few day ago one walked on the P. & E. track, between this place and Beechwood, ahead of Erie mail train, being knocked down the embankment

Williamsport Bulletin.

Advices received from Cameron county leads the Gazette and Bulletin to believe that the prospects for success of the Republican county, as well as state ticket, grows brighter every day. While Cameron is usually very close and not always reliably Republican on local matters, this year it appears to be the intention of the Republicans, as well as many Democrats, who, disgusted with the betrayal of their party in the interests of Wanamaker, McClure, Guffy, et. al., to vote the entire Republican ticket. The latest reports predict the election of Hon. George A. Walker, Associate Judge, and Walter Yothers, Treasurer. Both are popular gentlemen. Mr. Walker, one of the sitting associates, is a star man and trusty in every emergency.

Mr. Yothers, for Treasurer, is exceedingly popular with the laboring class, especially the woodsmen, having for many years followed that occupation, until by economy he was able to acquire an education. He is a gentleman of spotless character, popular with all classes and will receive the hearty support of many prominent members of the opposition, who appreciate his eminent fitness for the responsible position of County Treasurer. The citizens of Cameron will make no mistake by voting for the honorable gentleman, but on the other hand will be doing themselves credit.

Estray Notice.

S. F. EBERSOLE.

Sterling Run, Oct. 30th, 1901.

Prominent Society People Wedded.

On the twenty-second anniversary of her birth and the thirty-fourth anniversary of her mother's wedding, Miss Alice Weir Sofield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Breck Sofield was united in marriage to William Barnum Philleo of Cross Fork, in the Presbyterian church at noon yesterday.

To the sweet strains of the "Wedding Morn" the bridal party entered the sacred edifice at 11:30 o'clock. Leaning on the arm of her father, the bride headed the procession to the chancel followed by the groom and his best man Mr. Leon H. Newton, of Rochester, N. Y. Rev. Francis Yarnell, of Coudersport, officiated, using the nuptial Episcopal ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The costume of the bride was a creation of loveliness that gratified the eye of the gentler sex in Austin far more than is usual on similar occasions. Her dress was composed of white silk trimmed with liberty satin ribbon; her feet were encased in silver slippers an heirloom of the family Instead of a bouquets he carried a pearl bound prayer book containing the marriage certificate. Miss Margaret Edith Carson was maid of honor. Miss Carson was beautifully attired and carried a bouquet of white hyacinths. Her bridesmaids were Miss Edith W. Cowles of Wellsville, N. Y., and Miss Mary A. Welch of Eldred, Pa. Their dresses were splendid creations of costuming. The groom was tastefully and elegantly attired in a convential Prince Albert black coat and light trousers. Messrs. Clinton N. Smith, of Thelburn Falls, Mass., and Edward H. Weaver, of Cross Fork were grooms men, while Messrs. Vernon Grinolds and Fred Pomeroy of Austin acted as ushers.

A pleasing feature of the ceremony was the presence of flower girls and ribbon boys, Ruth Allison and Marie Brisbois acting as the former and Harold Caskey and Foster Johnston the latter.

The floral decorations in the church were tasteful and remarkably pretty, the colors blue and white prevailing in consonance with the customes of the bride and her attendants.

At the bride's home on Turner street where a reception was held during the afternoon, the floral decorations were even more gorgeous and pleasing. Hundreds of guests and the bride's friends called to offer their congratulations and well wishes.

Mention must be made of the numerous handsome presents of which the newly married couple were the recipients, especially the handsome silver service presented by the groom's employer, Mr. E. Peltz of Cross Fork. Its massiveness and beauty represents an intrinsic value that speaks well for the esteem in which Mr. Philleo is held.

The happy couple left on the evening train for Harrisburg and other cities. They will be "at home" in Cross Fork after Nov. 20th.—Austin Republican.

The Campaign Liar.

The PRESS had hoped the campaign liar would not be in evidence in this campaign, but it appears he has started out with the single purpose of attempting to deceive the people in relation to our worthy candidate for County Treasure, Mr. Walter Yothers. One of the most rediculous stories circulated is that Mr. Yothers receives a large sum of money as Justice of the Peace and a fabulous amount as bookkeeper, when the facts are that Mr. Yothers does not receive $5.00 per year, so we are informed by one of the County Commissioners. Any sensible man will take no stock in such trash. Not being able to injure our candidate in any other way, falsehood has been resorted to. The latest to be circulated is to the effect that Mr. Yothers does not intend to conduct the business of the office, but will farm it out. This old chestnut is always circulated when an election of Treasurer is before the people. The office of Treasurer in this county is not worth sufficient money to enable a Treasurer to do anything of the kind, unless he desires to give away all there is in it. Mr. Yothers is, practically speaking, a poor man, and being an expert accountant would naturally desire to give the office his personal attention. The question of deputy has never entered his mind. Walter Yothers will be elected Treasurer and his honest smiling countenance will greet you on the Hill after the first Monday in January next. Ante-election stories react.

Thos. Gallagher, the hard worked P. & E. agent, at this place enjoyed a couple of days at Pan-Am. last week.

Election Day Dinner.

The L. O. T. M., of Sterling Run, will serve dinner and supper, in the Van Ness building, election day. Meals 25 cents.

Dangerously Ill.

We are pained to learn that Mrs. C. C. Fay is dangerously ill with pneumonia and very low. Her daughter, Mrs. Norris, returned to Emporium yesterday.

Got a Divorce.

Mrs. Editha A. Howard has secured a divoce from her husband, Samuel T. Howard, and has the custody of the children.—Wednesday's Williamsport Bulletin.

Council Accepts Electric Light Plant.

At a special meeting of Borough Council held last evening they accepted the electric light plant from contractor Geo. Metzger, every member present voting aye, except Mr. Hacket. Our people are pleased.

Brushing Up.

R. H. Hirsch has made a great change and improvement in his jewelry store. In addition to purchasing two handsome up-to-date show cases he has purchased and has now displayed an entirely new and handsome line of goods, embracing a complete line.

Safety Burglar Vaults.

The First National Bank of Emporium has received and will soon place in position for the use of their patrons, one hundred safety fire burglar proof vaults, where valuables may be deposited by the renter. The boxes range in price from $1.50 to $5.00 per year. This new departure on the part of the First National will be appreciated by their patrons.

Will Marry.

Henry W. Graham, of Emporium, will lead to the altar Miss Adeline Lawson in the near future, the ceremony to take place in St. Paul's A. M. E. Church, at Bellefonte, Pa., Nov. 21st. Mr. Graham has resided in Emporium for many years and is a quiet, industrious citizen, having the respect and confidence of our citizens. The lady of his choice has for more than seventeen years been with the family of the late Ex. Gov. A. G. Curtin, and no doubt will make our friend's home a happy one. Our citizens will certainly wish them well.

Long Distance Phone.

Commencing with to-day Emporium is connected with the outside world. The New York and Pennsylvania Telephone and Telegraph Company, whose announcement appears on the 8th page of this week's PRESS, have completed their line. This will be a great convenience to our business men who have occasion to talk with distant points.

Geo. Metzger, Jr., is manager of lines in this county and patrons will be served by calling at his place of business.

Our Landlord Farmer.

William McGee has been absent for several weeks and the boys were greatly concerned about him, until word was received that he was somewhat dubious as to when he would reach home but that he had started for home with his share of the potatoes, three bushels, having left Meshoppen ten days ago, following a pheasants trail in the direction of Renovo. This morning John Meyers reported he had met him at Renovo, but fearing his potatoes would not last until he reached Emporium had turned back to Meshoppen for a fresh supply, or wait until watermellon season arrives, when Dean Sampson had guaranteed some blind robins.

At the Same Old Game.

Honest Republicans will not be caught voting for the fusion state ticket, commonly called the "Onion" ticket. Republicans should reflect and ask themselves this question; "are not these gentlemen who are urging you to vote this ticket the same men who yearly pose as reformers and are always sure to be kickers, no matter how worthy the candidates upon the Republican ticket may be." These bogus reformers will hear something drop on Nov. 5th, that will burry their hypocritically self-nominated ticket under a sweeping Republican majority of one hundred thousand for Potter, Harris and regularity in party politics. Honest Democrats are just as much interested in defeating this gang of bogus reformers (?)

Walter Yothers is a good clean gentleman and his administration of the affairs of the office of County Treasurer will receive his individual attention. Vote for Yothers.

BRIEF MENTION.

Many Emporiumites left for Buffalo Tuesday morning to witness the closing scenes of Pan-Am.

A new issue of postal cards will appear shortly after December 1st. President McKinley's picture and name will embellish them.

The Pennsylvania railroad company will erect car shops at Olean for the Buffalo & Allegheny division of the company's property.

A serious freight wreck is reproted to have occurred near Buffalo, this morning, all trains being delayed. We are unable to secure one word of information.

Don't get gay with the editor, says an exchange. A young woman poked fun at the editor of the Bluffton (Ind.) Banner because his trousers were patched. The editor went home and sued her husband for $10 he owed on subscription.

Representative Maloney, of Venango county, it is said will vote for Potter and Harris this year, becacse he cannot stand the fusion idea Mr. Maloney is a good deal of an independent Democrat, and cannot stand the "Onion" party.

It is proposed at Washington to erect a magnificen monument to the late President McKinley in the shape of a memorial arch to cost $2,000,000, on the district of Columbia end of the proposed memorial bridge, the construction of which is practically assured. The bridge will be one of the finest in the world, and the proposed arch will make it almost unique among memorial structures.

The St. Marys Gazette truthfully remarks: "Girls will do well to hold aloof from so-called fellows that gain a livelihood by hanging around the home of their parents. Of all abominations on God's smiling earth, the most sickening is the young man who is too lazy to work and lives on the earnings of an aged father or mother. Parasites of such a type should not be allowed to associate with respectable people. They are a shame to their kin, a libel upon mankind, and are the best excuse for the existence of a hell of fire to punish such as spend their lives in sin and idleness."

Hon. Geo. A. Walker will have a walk-away for Associate Judge, but that is no reason why you should not vote for him. Make his election unanimous.

Last Sad Rites.

In our last issue the PRESS at some length, gave an account of the death of JAMES MORRISSEY. The funeral of the deceased took place last Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and was one of the largest ever witnessed in this place. St. Mark's Catholic Church, of which deceased was a faithful member, was filled with our citizens, comprising all classes and denominations, attesting to the universal respect in which deceased was held by our people. The remarks by Father Downey were well timed and highly eulogistic. After viewing the remains the casket was closed by funeral director Egan, when the large concourse of people silently wended their way to the "silent city." Thus closes the career, on earth, of one more respected citizen. The PRESS scribe noticed a very large number of friends in attendance, in addition to relatives, and shall endeavor to give their names as far as possible:

The Family:—J. S. Morrissey, Superior, Wis.; Mrs. Webb Sater, Tacoma, Wash.; P. J. Morrissey, Sidnaw, Michigan; J. L Morrissey, and Mrs. M. F. Friel, Renovo, Pa.; Mrs. H. Steel, Kane, Pa.; Mrs. Robert House, Emporium; Miss Ella Morrissey, Kane; Miss Mame Morrissey, and Mr. Thos. Morrissey of this place.

FRIENDS FROM OUT OF TOWN.

Mr. M. F. Friel and family, Harry Friel, Will Friel, John Houlahan, Forest Swyers, Berry Albright, M. J. Healy, F. Haley, J Drohn, J. Koler, Pat Shelley and Mrs. W. Blosser, all of Renovo; Judge McDonald and Dan Dailey, Driftwood; Pat Clair, Pat Kileen and Dan'l Sullivan, Cameron; Chas. E. Voelk, Harry Steel, Kane; Mrs. Will Haley, Johnsonburg; Mr. and Mrs. Ed May, Olean.

Walter Yothers is daily gaining strength with the people and will come in on the home-stretch in fine style. He is a laboring man and has had to work hard, from the woods to the desk, ever since he was old enough to grub for a living. You will not be ashamed of your ballot if you vote for Walter Yothers for County Treasurer.

Scolgosh Pays the Penalty.

Auburn, Oct. 29.—At 7.12 30 o'clock this morning Leon F. Czolgosz, murderer President William McKinley, paid the extreme penalty exacted by the law for his crime. He was shocked to death by 1,700 volts of electricity. He went to the chair in exactly the same manner as have the majority of all the other murderers in this state, showing no particular sign of fear, but, in fact, doing what few of them have done, talking to the witnesses while he was being strapped in the chair.

"I killed the President because he was an enemy of the good people—of the good working people. I am not sorry for my crime."

These were his words as the guards hurried him into the chair.

A moment later he mumbled through the half-adjusted face straps: "I am awfully sorry I could not see my father."

Rev. Cordello Herrick, chaplain of the prison, was in the death chamber ready for any call that might be made for his services. He was not wanted by the prisoner, however, and sat quietly in the rear of the chamber throughout the execution.

The clothing and personal effects of the prisoner were burned under direction of Warden Mead shortly after the execution.

A Delightful Concert.

The opening entertainment of the Star Course, given under the auspices of the Brockway Lyceum Bureau, of Pittsburg, at the opera house last evening, was a most delightful one. The audience was large and enthusiastic, and very liberal in its applause, and the numerous encores were responded to in a very gracious manner. The entertainment was given by the Patricolo Concert Company, comprising the following high class people: Signor Angelo Patricolo, Pianist; Miss Agness Rapp, Soprano; Miss Winifred Gray Reader; Mr. Herbert Butler, Violinist. Their selections were of the very highest order, and in its entirety the concert was the treat that it was expected to be, and the audience was delighted.

Many took occasion to compliment Mr. S. H Clair, the resident manager, as they were leaving the theatre, on the auspicious opening of the course.—Evening Telegram, Ashland, Pa., Oct. 29th, 1901 At Court House, Emporium, Pa., Monday evening Nov. 4th. Tickets on sale at H. S. Lloyd's, the chart to be opened tomorrow (Friday) at 4 p. m. Secure your seats now for the entire course.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

MELEN.

Mrs. Maggie Melen, aged 37 years, wife of William Melen, who came here some time ago from Buffalo, died suddenly at the American Hotel last Saturday, of heart failure. Deceased was recovering from typhoid fever when her death occurred. The funeral took place last Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from American Hotel, Rev. O. S. Metzler officiating. Although strangers in our midst the funeral was largely attended. The husband of the deceased is employed by Climax Powder Company and the officers and employees of the Company promptly came to the assistance of the afflicted husband with a liberal donation.

Let Him Alone.

When you ask a man to subscribe for your paper and he says, "Oh, I never read much, and, besides, the times are too plagued hard," for God's sake apologize and leave him. Life is too short to teach a jack to sing saprano. All gentlemen nowadays read newspapers, and lots of them. Show us a man who lives for years in a town or community and never subscribes for the papers published there and we will show you a man whose head is shaped like a piece of pie, with point up, and whose ignorance is only exceeded by his gigantic gall.—Ex.

Senator William Flynn, former insurgent leader, Governor Stone and County Chairman Robertson, spoke at McKeesport last Saturday evening for the Republican ticket. Senator Flinn stood squarely on the Republican platform and said in part:

"There are many things I would like to have done in the State of Pennsylvania, and many that I would rather have left undone. More first class laws should be passed; improved ballot laws, stringent primary election laws, extensive additions to hospitals, educational institutions, insane asylums, public parks and good roads should be promoted."

Senator Flinn insisted that these all would come quickly, and asserted that his interest in them had not abated one bit. He also argued for personal registration, saying that under the present system there are 30 per cent. too many names on the lists.

Senator Flinn said the defeat of the Republican ticket will be considered in other States a failure on the part of Pennsylvania to support the martyred McKinley, under whose policies the industries of the Commonwealth have thrived, and his successor, Roosevelt. He therefore urged that all labor roll up a big majority.

Vote the entire Republican ticket and get your neighbor to do the same.

Up in Columbia county the old Jacksonian Fishing Creek Democracy get sick at the mention of Coray.

Every Republican should go to the polls next week and mark the circle at the top of the first column on the ballot.

Republicans! You have an excellect ticket and the candidates are all men worthy of your support. See that you are not deceived into scratching a single name—place an X at the head of the first column and you will have no regrets to make. It is your duty to stand by the party.

Youth's Hobbledehoy Period.

The transition or bobbledehoy period, between boyhood and young manhood, when a youth is no longer a boy and not yet a man, is the most trying time of his life. This is the age when the interrogation point assumes colossal proportions, when every faculty of his nature is asking questions and wondering what the future has in store for him. This is the period which tries him. This is the time when great changes, the meaning of which he cannot solve, begin in his life. He is growing so fast, and his tastes are changing so rapidly, that he does not yet know what he is going to do, what occupation or profession to choose. While the youth is in this unsettled condition, teachers and parents should exercise great patience in dealing with him, advises O. S. Marden, in Success, as whatever is put into this part of his life is put into the whole of life. This is the impressionable stage, when, if he hears a lawyer expatiate upon the beauty of the law, he will think that he is cut out for the bar, and will change his mind next day in favor of medicine, if he hears a doctor enlarge upon the nobility of the medical profession. The lad changes from one thing to another with equal impartiality and lack of judgment. He has not had sufficient experience to see the thorns, the difficulties, the discouragements incident to the different vocations, but he sees only the flowers and the pleasant side of them.

What Can Be Done in Any Town.

There is a little town in New Jersey where an improvement league has done more to cleanse and beautify the place, at an expense of less than $100, than the town council has accomplished by expending thousands of dollars in the ordinary way. The league began by offering prizes for clean back yards and alleys, and then for the prettiest vine-covered fence, the finest vegetable plot and the most beautiful flowering plant. It enlisted the active interest of the boys and girls, and got them to pick up waste paper and such things from the streets; to keep the school yard neat, and also the vacant lots. In six months' time the town became particularly attractive and clean, and the death rate has perceptibly decreased. The improvement league idea is open to any town where this paragraph may be read.

With horseless carriages speeding along at the rate of nearly a mile a minute and M. Santos-Dumont's airship successfully navigating the ambient ether in Paris, it seems that Mother Shipton's powers of prophecy have been vindicated. The achievement of Henri Fournier in sending an automobile a distance of six miles in six minutes and 47 seconds is sufficiently notable to attract attention, but to a certain extent it had been anticipated. The thing which will occasion more general wonder is the fact, demonstrated in Paris, that an airship can be made to follow prescribed courses at the will of the navigator and can be made to perform these evolutions at a tremendous rate of speed.

In the course of a trial an English judge is reported to have said: "The laws of God and man both give the party accused an opportunity to make his defense, if he has any. I remember to have heard it observed by a very learned man upon such an occasion that even God Himself did not pass sentence upon Adam before he was called to make his defense. 'Adam,' said God, 'where art thou? Hast thou eaten of the tree whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldst not eat?' And the same question was put to Eve also."

For six scholarships recently awarded by the Georgia school of technology there were 560 applications. This is accepted as evidence that the young white men of the south are inclining toward manual and mechanical work as a career. Georgia papers note this change of sentiment with much satisfaction. Formerly there was a prejudice against mechanical labor.

IN MEMORIAM.

AN ENGLISH TRIBUTE.

"God-by all, good-by. It is God's way, His will be Done!"
It is God's way! take comfort, O my soul,
His path of Peace lies low and through the land
Of sorrow, yet, for all, with saving Hand
He holds the wheels of life with strong control.

Brave heart! It is God's way: Christ's creed in truth
Was thine: His prayer—"On earth the Reign of God—"
Was thine: and thine the dolorous way He trod,
Victim of senseless folly, void of ruth.

"It is God's way. His will be done!"—Thy King
Hath called thee, and for hard-won heavenly wage
Gives nobler work and loftier embassage,
To be through death thy nation's hallowing.

O Heart of Mercy! come with healing light,
Shine on her soul who sits with sorrow crowned;
Chase far the shadows, till the day be found
When cherished memory changes into sight.

Thou King of nations, and their hearts' desire,
O Corner Stone, man's starting place and goal,
Our manhood's faith in History's unread scroll
Enhearten with Thy Spirit's holy fire.

Love and good will, on earth Thy will be done,
Treason and war and devil's hate bid cease,
O guide Thy people to the Way of Peace,
Through cleansing splendors of the Eternal Sun.

ANTI-TRUST REPUBLICANS.

Leader Who Strongly Favor Effective Remedies for Oppressive Monopolies.

Senator Allison and Speaker Henderson, respectively the republican leaders of the national senate and house, stated in their speeches at Manchester that they are in favor of congress and the state legislatures utilizing every power for the removal of monopoly or its minimization. Senator Allison declared that "all parties should unite to apply every available effective remedy for these evils when shown to exist by means of legislation and administration." That is the right policy, in order that the people may have still more positive proof that the opponents of republicanism are merely using the trusts to aid their efforts to deceive and mislead the voters. But the people are higher and stronger than all legislation, and the people are the only power that can destroy the trusts. Take the sugar trust as an example to be legislated out of existence by the removal of the duty on raw sugars. What would be the result? The trust would be given the advantage of all the duties it now pays on raw sugars, and every dollar of those duties would go into the sugar trust's treasury.

Speaker Henderson called attention to the fact that the republicans of the Fifty-sixth congress did everything within their power to give congress the constitutional rights to place everything made by combinations on the free list, but the effort was defeated by the almost solid vote of the democratic members. He does not believe that that would be a sufficient remedy for the trusts, but it will give the people the proof that the republicans are in favor of every movement against the trusts and combines that will compel them to sell their products at competitive prices.

The trust "fad" is having the run of the world, and trusts are much more easily organized and maintained in Europe than in the United States. The people of this country have every trust within their power, except those protected by patent rights, and can crush all of them by refusing to purchase their products if they do not sell their goods at competitive prices. This fact must be plain to all persons who can read and think, and the future will demonstrate that the people crushed the trusts by refusing to purchase their products.—Iowa State Register.

A DEMOCRAT SELECTED.

President Roosevelt Shows That He Intends to Favor the Best Men for Office.

The appointment by President Roosevelt of a democrat to the position of United States district judge in Alabama should create no surprise. Of course it is not to be intimated that the president is a democrat, or that he has a leaning toward the democratic party, but during his entire official career he has been an uncompromising advocate of the merit system in the filling of official positions.

When he announced that it was his purpose to give offices in the south to the best men, and that he would appoint democrats if he could not find suitable republicans, he meant exactly what he said. Now, if the southern republicans do not get offices they can blame nobody but themselves. The truth is that there are few republicans in the south who are fit to fill high positions. The Leader has not hesitated in the past to condemn and criticise the republican party leaders in that section. As a rule they are nothing but office brokers. Their efforts in behalf of the republican party have not extended beyond the caucuses and conventions. They have traded on their ability to control delegates to national conventions, but when election day came they had no votes to return.

President Roosevelt may have another purpose to serve than merely getting the best man for office. He may be seeking to precipitate a political revolution in the south. No matter what his purpose, however, there is no doubt that he will be enabled to bring about a great change of sentiment in that section by a proper exercise of the power of appointment.—Cleveland Leader.

SENATOR HOAR'S ELOQUENCE.

Noble Sentiments Uttered by the Republican Representative of Massachusetts.

In his eulogy of Mr. McKinley before the republican state convention at Boston, Senator Hoar said:

"You and I are republicans. You and I are men of the north. Most of us are Protestants in religion. We are men of native birth. Yet, if every republican were to-day to fall in his place, as William McKinley has fallen, I believe our countrymen of the other party, in spite of what we deem their errors, would take the republic and bear on the flag to liberty and glory. I believe if every Protestant were to be stricken down by a lightning stroke that our brethren of the Catholic faith would still carry on the republic in the spirit of true and liberal freedom. I believe if every man of native birth within our borders were to die this day the men of foreign birth who have come here to seek homes and liberty, under the shadow of the republic would carry on the republic in God's appointed way. I believe if every man in the north were to die, the new and chastened south, with the virtues it has cherished from the beginning of love of home and love of state and love of freedom, with its courage and its constancy, would take the country and bear it on to the achievement of its lofty destiny. The anarchist must slay 75,000,000 Americans before he can slay the republic."

These are noble sentiments, worthy of the speaker and of his subject. They should sink into the hearts and minds of all our people; and to the extent that they do influence opinion and action, by so much will the whole country benefit. It is the hour for reflection over the excesses of partisanship. Mr. McKinley was not more severely assailed than were Washington and Jackson and Lincoln before him. But, as in their cases, his real character comes out strong and clear in death, and all worthy men recognize now the great value of the services that he rendered the state. When it is too late for him to hear this undivided praise, it is poured out in feeling and sincere abundance.

We have, in fact, strong institutions, administered as a rule by strong and worthy men. America is, truly, the home of civil and religious liberty. A large number of men of foreign birth worthily share with men of native birth the inestimable privileges of citizenship. Men of all creeds and colors have testified in battle and elsewhere to their devotion to the flag that shelters them. In the two wars with Great Britain, a Protestant power, Protestants and Catholics stood shoulder to shoulder. In the war with Spain, a Catholic power, Catholics and Protestants fought for the country with equal valor. This is all so plain, and has so frequently been the subject of comment and felicitation, the wonder is that, even in our moments of extreme temptation, we put it aside and follow the suggestions of partisan passion and unreasonableness.

But we do, more's the pity. When our campaigns warm up, only high colors are used in the press or on the stump. The other side and its representatives are assailed in the strongest terms, and men are asked to take position as though the existence of the republic itself depended upon the result. In some measure, despite all our lessons, this will continue to be true. But if the future shall show even an appreciable cheapening of our stump demagogues in the popular estimation, and a moderation of the transports of the perfervid and the sentimental, the memory of Mr. McKinley will largely have wrought the beneficial change. We shall owe him for that as for many other things.—Washington Star.

ALL NEED PROTECTION.

Of Great Benefit to the Southern as Well as the Northern Industries.

The indications that the south is awakening to the importance of protection for its industries are becoming stronger daily. Allusion has repeatedly been made in these columns to the growth of manufactures in that locality, and this, with the great natural resources of the south awaiting development, made it certain that sooner or later it would come to the point where protection would be the vital issue.

That point is probably nearer now than it has been at any time in the history of the country. A fair sample of the way in which representative men of the south are thinking and talking is furnished by Capt. Evan P. Howell, of Georgia. Capt. Howell is an active man of affairs, a broad-minded democrat and father of Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, one of the most progressive newspapers of the southern section. Discussing the political situation, Capt. Howell said: "As our manufacturing industries multiply, the protection sentiment at the south grows." The race problem, he affirmed, is not troubling Georgia. A law regulating the suffrage bears in the main impartially on both white and colored voters, and he adds that if the republicans let the negro question alone and preach protection they will build up a strong party. He continues:

"I will go farther and say that if they do this and the democrats preach absolute free trade or something very akin to it, then the republicans will build up a party that will dominate in states like North and South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. Our people are beginning to learn what protection has done for the manufacturing interests of New England and the north generally, and they want to share in the benefits of this system."

If protection is a good thing for one section of the country it is a good thing for all sections. It has taken the south a long time to find that out, but now that its eyes are opened to the truth it may become, instead of a free trade fastness, a protection stronghold.—Troy Times.

☞The most striking feature of the Massachusetts democratic state convention was the way in which the Bryan crowd pitched into the other fellows. Democratic harmony in our neighboring commonwealth is something beautiful to see.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

NINETEEN KILLED.

Awful Loss of Life in a Fire at Philadelphia.

PROPERTY LOSS $500,000.

Fire was in the Heart of the Business District.

PEOPLE CRAZED BY FRIGHT

A Number of Persons Were Crushed to Death by Jumping from Windows to the Street, While Others Were Cremated.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Nineteen known dead and a property loss amounting to upwards of $500,000, is the awful result of a fire which occurred Friday in the business section of the city. The number of injured is not known definitely, but fully a score of victims were treated at various hospitals. Police and firemen are delving into the ruins in search of bodies supposed to have been buried beneath the debris, as it is feared that others besides the known dead may have lost their lives in the flames.

The buildings destroyed were the eight-story structure, 1219 and 1221 Market street, occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., upholsterers and furniture dealers, and three three-story buildings occupied by small merchants. The big furniture building extended back a half block to Commerce street, and was owned by Henry C. Lea. The list of known dead is as follows:

Dorothy Kramer.
Martha Baker.
Margaret Hebden.
Susan Gormley.
Harry House.
H. A. Sparrow.
Charles E. Sparrow.
Fred Wittington.
Charles Landis.
Three unknown white women, one of whom is supposed to be Margaret Grady.
One unknown colored woman, supposed to be named Wilson.
Six unknown white men.

At 10:20 a. m. the blaze broke forth in the building occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., and one hour later the horrible sacrifice of life had been made and the immense loss of property had been accomplished. The origin of the death dealing conflagration is unknown. It is said that an explosion of naphtha or gasoline in the basement was the cause, but this is denied by Mr. Wilkinson, who says there never was a sufficient quantity of either explosive about the building to be responsible for the terrible disaster. Rumor has it, also, that an elevator constructor at work in the basement permitted the flame of his lantern to communicate with some of the gaseous liquids stored in the basement and that this was the cause of the conflagration.

Such a disastrous fire attended with so great a loss of life in such a brief period was never before known in this city. Men and women died a lingering, agonizing death in the presence of thousands of spectators who were unable to lift a hand to their assistance. The rear of Hunt, Wilkinson & Co.'s building faces on Commerce street, a small thoroughfare. On the fire escape at this end of the building two men and one woman were slowly roasted to death, while the horror-stricken throng on the street below turned sick at the sight. In the front on Market street a woman leaped from a window on the top floor and was dashed to death to the pavement. These are but a few of the heartrending scenes attending the conflagration. Firemen claim to have seen men and women, unable to reach the windows or fire escapes, burned to death in the interior of the building. If this be so, little or nothing remains of these victims and it is doubtful if any portion of their bodies will be recovered.

Seventy-nine of the 100 persons in Hunt, Wilkinson & Co.'s building when the fire started were employes and the remainder were customers and outside workmen who were putting the finishing touches on the new eighth floor. More than half of the firm's employes were on the upper five floors, and it was among these that the greatest number were killed and injured. With the possible exception of the engineer, who is missing, all persons on the first three floors got out of the building safely. The members of the firm had their offices on the third floor, and their familiarity with the exits is all that saved them from suffocation.

Mr. Wilkinson said the smoke came up the stairway and elevator in such great volume that he and Mr. Hunt had great difficulty in reaching the street. Most of those killed were at work on the sixth floor, where women were engaged in sewing. They were at work in the rear of the building, close to the fire escape, and became confused by the great quantity of smoke that rushed up through the building.

On the seventh floor 20 upholsterers were at work and, thanks to the presence of mind of the foreman of the floor, who is an official of the volunteer fire department at Mount Holly, N. J., all escaped unhurt. As soon as he learned of the fire he marshalled his men and led them through the thick smoke down the stairway and safely into the street. There were 11 employes and a number of outside workmen on the eighth floor. A ladder reached from this floor to reach the roof of an adjoining eight-story building, but in the excitement this means of escape was forgotten. Several made the terrible leap to the sidewalk and were crushed, while the others ran the gauntlet of smoke and fire down the rear fire escapes.

STARTLING FACTS ABOUT SUGAR.

As a good deal has recently appeared in print regarding the consumption of sugar, and as the importance of this article as a food, in which every individual is concerned, is apparently not sufficiently understood, the following facts and figures furnished to us by the well-known sugar statisticians, Messrs. Willett and Gray (91 Wall street, New York), who are the publishers of the weekly Statistical Sugar Trade Journal, must necessarily be of great interest to all our readers:

An Express Messenger Prevents a Train Robbery.

Two Bandits Attack an Express Car on the Southern Pacific Road, but are Put to Flight After a Battle of Almost One Hour's Duration.

Eugene, Ore., Oct. 24.—The northbound Southern Pacific overland express was held up by robbers near Walker's station, 15 miles south of here, at 3 a. m. Wednesday and the express car badly damaged, but the robbers secured little booty. Two men boarded the train at Cottage Grove as the train pulled out. After passing Walker's, which is four miles from Cottage Grove, they climbed over the tender and covered Engineer Burt Lucas and the fireman and his helper with revolvers. The robbers ordered the train stopped, after which the fireman and helper were compelled to uncouple the train between the express car and the first coach.

Engineer Lucas was then ordered to pull ahead, the fireman and helper being left behind. After going a short distance the train was stopped and the robbers proceeded to the express car, taking with them the engineer. The express car was blown open with dynamite and Express Messenger Charles was ordered out, but he refused to go and with his shotgun commanded the situation inside the car. The robbers told him to come out or he would be blown up with the car, but he replied "Blow ahead." A fusillade of bullets followed, riddling the car, but the messenger, who was uninjured, kept up a continuous fire from the inside which held the robbers at bay.

A charge of dynamite was then thrown into the car with a burning fuse, but Charles grabbed it and threw it outside, where it exploded. Next the robbers compelled the engineer to crawl up to the opening inside of the car, hoping to use him as a protection from the messenger's shots, but the messenger kept up a steady fire over the engineer's head and still held the robbers at bay. The robbers then gave up their efforts to secure the express treasure and went for the mail. They secured the registered mail, then cut off the engine from the rest of the train and ordered Engineer Lucas to pull ahead. They ran to Judkins Point, in the outskirts of Eugene, where they disembarked and ordered the engineer to return and get his train. The train arrived here about four hours late. The news was wired from Saginaw and officers were sent out in search of the robbers, but secured no trace of them.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 24.—The Southern Pacific train which was held up near Eugene, arrived here Wednesday afternoon. The express car is badly shattered, but it was brought in with the train.

"The first intimation I had of anything wrong," said C. F. Charles, the express messenger, "was when the train began to slow up near Walker's Station. The train came to a standstill and I was ordered to open the door. I refused to move. 'Open up this car or we will blow you to hell!' commanded one of the robbers. I made no response and was given a salute with dynamite. The first charge blew open one of the doors and knocked me down. My overalls were blown into shreds and my legs scratched somewhat, but otherwise I was unhurt.

"Further commands to open up and threats followed, but without avail. I made no reply, knowing that the object of the robbers was to locate me in the car and then try to put me out of the way, either by dynamite or bullets. I changed my station to the other end of the car. The third shot failed to go off, as I had removed my shoes and walked over to the dynamite and detached the fuse. Two more shots exploded, each of them blowing a hole in the car. All told, four shots went off in the car. Two failed to explode and one I prevented from exploding by removing the fuse. All efforts to compel me to open up or leave the car failing, the engineer was sent in through the opening blown into the side. I ordered him to get out, and fired a shot over his head with my shotgun. The entire ceremony lasted about 40 minutes. The engineer retired after I fired the shot and ordered him to leave, and I was not molested further."

Resolutions were also adopted extolling the virtues of President McKinley, denouncing anarchy and calling upon congress to pass laws which will effectually stamp out the evil.

Mr. Dreyfus will not make known the names of the two players he will part with, but the prevailing opinion seems to be that Conroy will be one of them.

SCHLEY ON WITNESS STAND.

Tells of the Orders Given Him by Admiral Sampson and of the Blockade of Cienfuegos.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Lieut. B. W. Wells, who was the flag lieutenant of Admiral Schley while the latter was in command of the flying squadron, occupied practically the entire time of the Schley court of inquiry yesterday. On his direct examination he continued his narrative of the Cuban campaign. Lieut. Wells was under cross examination for about two and a half hours, largely at the hands of Mr. Hanna, whose questions were directed mainly to the dispatches received and sent by Schley.

While this line of investigation was being exploited Mr. Rayner, speaking for Schley, said the latter was willing to admit that he had received the "Dear Schley" letter on the Dupont which arrived at Cienfuegos May 22, but he added that no duplicate of this dispatch had ever been received by Schley. He said also that the admiral admitted the receipt of two copies of No. 8, Admiral Sampson's dispatch, saying the Spanish fleet was probably at Santiago, and telling Schley "if satisfied that it (the Spanish fleet) is not at Cienfuegos to proceed with all dispatch to Santiago."

Washington, Oct. 23.—The Schley court of inquiry opened yesterday with Lieut. Wells, who was Schley's flag lieutenant during the Spanish war, still on the stand, but he was soon displaced to allow Yeoman Mason, who had written the Brooklyn's log for the period covering the Santiago campaign, to testify. Mr. Mason explained the erasures in the log entry referring to the Brooklyn's turn on the day of the battle off Santiago. He was followed by George E. Graham, who as a press correspondent was with Schley during the entire campaign.

Mr. Graham's testimony covered all the principal events of the campaign and discussed especially the bombardment of the Spanish ship Colon on May 31 and the battle off Santiago on July 3. Mr. Graham testified to hearing a conversation between Commodore Schley and Capt. Sigsbee when the latter came aboard the flagship Brooklyn off Santiago May 26. He said that he had distinctly heard Capt. Sigsbee tell the commodore that the Spanish fleet was not inside the harbor at Santiago.

Lieut. Edward Simpson gave a graphic picture of the battle of July 3, and Lieut Fitzgerald, an assistant engineer who was on duty in the fire room on July 3, testified that an order had been given early in the action to stand by for a ram.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Admiral Schley yesterday took the stand in his own behalf at the court of inquiry. He was summoned a few minutes after the court convened at 2 o'clock for the afternoon session and when the court adjourned at 4 o'clock he apparently had only gotten well under way in his testimony.

The admiral gave a detailed narrative of all the events of the campaign up to the battle of Santiago.

Admiral Schley outlined the plan which he had indicated to his commanding officers before leaving Hampton Roads, saying: "I explained to all the commanding officers that as it would be impossible to contrive a plan of battle that would meet unforeseen contingencies, the general plan of the squadron would be to cruise in line of battle, and its general principle would be to attack the head and leading vessel, concentrating the fire upon them in order, first, to obtain the moral effect and second to throw them into confusion, making a victory over them probably very much more complete. I did that for the reason that the old plans of battle had all been to attack centers and rear, resulting in the escape usually of a part of each squadron."

The flying squadron arrived at Key West on May 17, and on the next day Admiral Sampson arrived and Schley talked over the situation with Sampson. "He showed me a number of orders. Among them was one which stated that a division of the two squadrons had been decided upon, one for the north and the other for the south coast of Cuba, in which he was given the preference of command. I asked him which of the two stations he would take and he said he proposed to hold the Havana or north one. He also told me his confidential instructions, which he delivered to me verbally, were that we were not to risk our battleships against the fortified places of the coast until after the Spanish squadron had been disposed of.

"I asked the admiral if there had been established any means of communicating with the insurgents, whether there were any pilots, or whether any locality was known where they were to be found. He told me that he did not know, but that when he got the situation better in hand he would communicate with me, but that he thought it would be better for me to start as early as we could get away and blockade Cienfuegos."

Coming to the blockade of Cienfuegos the admiral explained the formation of his fleet there, saying that the steaming which had been mentioned in the logs was for the purpose of overcoming the effect of a current which set directly into the bay. He said the ships were constantly setting into the beach and were obliged almost every hour to steam for a mile or more. "And that," he said, "accounts for a good deal of what is stated in the logs about steaming."

Cranemen Strike.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Trouble has broken out afresh at the Illinois steel works in South Chicago. The cranemen, who handle the molten metal ladles, have gone on strike, alleging that the company demanded that they do machinists' work on repairs. A number of machinists also quit work. The trouble at the steel works is of long standing. The cranemen who struck are the only employes in the plant who favored the Amalgamated association at the time of the great steel strike. The men claim they have been persecuted ever since the big strike.

YALE'S CELEBRATION.

Bi-Centennial of a Great University Is Fittingly Observed—President Roosevelt Attends and Receives a Degree.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 21.—Yale university on Sunday began the celebration of the two hundredth anniversity of the foundation of Yale college. The bi-centennial of the great institution of learning was ushered in with ceremonies essentially religious.

The city, proud in its function as a seat of learning, had bedecked itself in Yale's colors and presented a splendid spectacle. Blue draperies were intertwined with new cut evergreen and this general scheme of color was broken only by the graceful folds of the stars and stripes.

From the simple school of 1701, Yale now finds herself a great university, developed through the years from a one-building institution down through her "brick row," to a campus, thence to a second campus, and now to a third, and stretching out in her departmental buildings to territory as great again.

Within Battle chapel, where the bicentennial was inaugurated, the services were participated in by an assemblage as imposing as the exercises were simple.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 24.—Representatives of many people and creeds, of the learned professions and of the industries and literature were honored by Yale university yesterday and in turn paid homage to the great institution of learning which is celebrating the completion of the second century of its existence.

The closing exercises of the bi-centennial were held in the Hyperion theater. Classical music, a commemorative poem and a Greek festival hymn, both composed for the occasion, a commemorative address by David J. Brewer, associate justice of the United States supreme court, and finally the clothing with the hoods of the honorary degrees of great men, these constituted the day's exercises.

President Roosevelt and President Hadley entered the theater at 10:30. The president of the United States was led by the university's president to the seat of honor directly behind the orator's desk. President Hadley took his seat beside him. On this platform were Joseph H. Choate, John Hay, Richard Olney, Chief Justice Fuller and Justice Brewer, of the United States supreme court; Presidents Eliot, of Harvard; Patton, of Princeton; Faunce, of Brown; Harper, of Chicago; Provost Harrison, of Pennsylvania, and other college presidents, besides literary and churchmen of distinction.

After the overture the commemorative poem composed by Edmund Clarence Stedman was read.

David Brewer, justice of the United States supreme court, delivered the commemorative address. In his address Justice Brewer elicited applause from the audience when he referred to Yale as a place "where men are taught to recognize a Washington, whether his name is George or Booker."

The presentation of candidates for honorary degrees occupied about one hour. Secretary Hay, Joseph H. Choate, Chief Justice Fuller, Archbishop Ireland, Mark Twain, Seth Low and Rear Admiral Sampson received tremendous ovations.

When the long list had been finished President Hadley advanced a step or two and said: "There yet remains one name." In an instant the audience was standing. The president of the United States also arose and the theater rang with cheers.

Addressing President Roosevelt, President Hadley spoke as follows: "Theodore Roosevelt, while you were yet a private citizen we offered you the degree of L. L. D. Since it has pleased God to give Theodore Roosevelt another title, we give him on that account a double portion of welcome."

President Roosevelt advanced, bowed and tried to speak. Again the audience cheered, and it was fully a minute before he was allowed to respond.

The final official function of the bicentennial began at 5 o'clock. The affair was scheduled as a farewell reception by President and Mrs. Hadley, but the presence of the president of the United States, who assisted President and Mrs. Hadley in receiving lent impressiveness to the occasion.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN.

It Opened at Delaware, O., and Was Well Attended—Foraker, Nash, Nippert and Hanna Were the Speakers.

Delaware, O., Oct. 21.—The opening of the campaign here by the republicans on Saturday was the most largely attended for years. A feature of the occasion, from the opening prayer of President Bashford to the closing speech of Senator Hanna, was the remembrance of President McKinley and the appeal for the support of President Roosevelt. There was little reference to state affairs by Chairman Warnock or by Nash and Nippert, who head the state ticket, and none by Senators Foraker and Hanna.

When Senator Foraker referred to President Roosevelt entertaining Prof. Booker T. Washington, "as a representative of the colored race," there was quite a demonstration.

The greatest demonstration of the day was when Senator Hanna declared that he did not intend to quit politics or resign as senator or chairman of the republican national committee.

An Old-Time Politician Dies.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Col. Charles James, a prominent figure in Washington, died at his residence here Sunday, aged 84 years. Early in life he was an ardent democrat, but he became a republican in 1854 and was a member of the convention that nominated Fremont for the presidency. When Lincoln was elected president he appointed Col. James collector of customs at San Francisco. He was chosen by Anson Burlingame to be his second in the prospective duel with Brooks and started with his principal for Niagara Falls, but Brooks failed to appear.

MUST PAY TAXES.

Illinois Supreme Court Decides that Franchises and Capital Stock of Corporations Shall be Assessed.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 25.—The supreme court yesterday affirmed the decision of the lower court in the Chicago teachers' tax case, in which they insisted that the capital stock of corporations should be assessed. This ruling will add over $100,000,000 to the taxable property in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—The tax decision given by the Illinois supreme court relates to local corporations enjoying municipal franchises, including traction companies, gas companies and electric companies, whose total capital stock was estimated to be worth $368,000,000, all of which had escaped taxation previously and was likely to be omitted again by the state board, which adjourned last December without assessing this vast amount of property.

The trial of the case was begun before Judge Thompson, in Springfield, March 23 and the decision was handed down May 2, commanding the board to reassemble June 13 and assess these corporations in accordance with the rules of the board in regard to the assessment of capital stock. But the board not only neglected to make the assessment, but repealed the rules of the board on the subject, which had been in force over 30 years and had been sustained by the United States supreme court as the only legal plan of assessment.

Broad as is the sweep of this decision in itself, its logical results are much greater, as the decision, it is said, really applies just as well to railroad corporations and every other corporation in the state and may lead to the collection of back taxes.

JUMPED THE TRACK.

A Passenger Train is Wrecked and Several People Badly Injured.

Ottumwa, Ia., Oct. 25.—Two people were probably fatally hurt, five were seriously and a number of others slightly injured Thursday in the wreck of a Chicago, Burlington & Kansas City passenger train near Exline, 60 miles from here.

The train, while running rapidly, left the rails and plunged down a 40-foot embankment. The list of fatally injured is as follows:

James Macey, Unionville, Mo., hurt internally.

Wyman Seawright, Lancaster, Mo., hurt internally.

Seriously hurt:

John Seawright, Kansas City, Mo.

Miss Sophia Peterson, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

George Freeland, Browning, Mo.

Mrs. M. M. Freeland, Browning, Mo.

Mail Clerk Moore, Bloomfield, Ia.

All these were cut and bruised about the body.

The engineer and fireman jumped and escaped serious injury.

The train consisted of engine, passenger coach, mail car and combination car. Thirty passengers were on the train and besides those already named a number received slight injuries. How the casualty list failed to reach alarming proportions is a mystery, as the cars were reduced to a complete wreck.

A BOER AGENT.

He Comes to Washington and Will Try to Enlist the Aid of President Roosevelt.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Gen. Samuel Pearson, who is an adjutant on the staff of Gen. Botha, one of the Boer leaders, arrived in Washington yesterday. During a visit to Europe before coming here, Gen. Pearson had interviews with Dr. Leyds, the Transvaal agent, and with other leading men from the South American republics. He says the Boers will not give up to the British, but will fight to the end.

Pearson hopes to enlist the sympathies of the people of this country in behalf of the Boer men, women and children who are now kept by the British in reconcentrado camps. There is, he says, no reason for locating them in these camps when there are ample accommodations in the country for them. There are now 109,000 persons so situated and during the month of September the mortality among them approximated 2,400.

During his stay in Washington the general will seek an interview with President Roosevelt to acquaint him with the situation in South Africa. He also will make a further effort to prevent the shipment of mules from this country to South Africa and to have the matter carried to the supreme court of the United States.

A PLOT TO KILL THE SHAH.

His Brothers and Son-in-Law Were in the Conspiracy.

London, Oct. 25.—"News has been received here from Teheran," says a dispatch from St. Petersburg to the Daily Mail, "of the discovery of plots against the life of the shah. The leaders of the conspiracy were the shah's two brothers, the grand vizier and the shah's son-in-law. The two brothers have been banished for life to Ardebil. The son-in-law was sentenced to death; but on the scaffold his sentence was mitigated by the shah to flogging until he revealed all the names of the conspirators.

"The shah's favorite, Gavame, who was also concerned, was pardoned on the scaffold, but died subsequently in prison. The whole revolutionary party, together with the higher priests, were in the plot, and all will be beheaded or imprisoned for life.

Stole More than $1,300,000.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The comptroller of the currency has received from Examiner Ewer a full report of the recent robbery of the Merchants' national bank of Lowell, Mass., by the late teller, Smith, and Bookkeeper Swift. The report shows that the teller and bookkeeper entered the bank during the night and abstracted $95,810 in cash $808,239 of securities and $400,000 of collaterals. All of these securities and $92,000 of the cash were recovered through the counsel for Smith and Swift and the only loss the bank sustained was about $115,000.

PISTOL USED BY BOOTH.

Derringer with Which Lincoln Was Shot Is in Possession of a Philadelphia Man.

The assassination of President McKinley recalled to George Plowman, a theatrical architect of Philadelphia, the murder of President Lincoln by John Wilkes Booth at Ford's theater, Washington, D. C., on April 14, 1865. Mr. Plowman is the possessor of the Derringer, a small vest-pocket revolver, from which Booth fired the fatal shot.

"Several times it has been doubted that the Derringer which I have is the one with which Lincoln was murdered," said Mr. Plowman, "but there is absolutely no doubt that it is the same weapon. Three or four years after the shooting, while George K.

Goodwin and myself were running the Walnut Street theater in Philadelphia, the stage carpenter, who was working at Ford's theater the night of the assassination, put in an appearance at the Walnut Street theater. He informed Mr. Goodwin (they had been friends for many years) in a confidential manner that he had in his possession something that had caused him great anxiety. The carpenter, whose name I do not recall, told Mr. Goodwin in my presence that he had the Derringer that Booth had used to murder Lincoln.

"The reason he had not said anything about it prior to that time, he said, was because he was afraid of being arrested. The carpenter said he picked it up on the stage of Ford's theater after Booth had fled to Virginia. He pocketed the weapon and kept it a secret. He drew up a statement of the occurrence and signed it in our presence. Then he gave the Derringer to Mr. Goodwin. When Mr. Goodwin died his widow made me a present of the weapon, together with the stage carpenter's signed statement."

Mr. Plowman prizes the weapon very highly, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, and no amount of money could purchase it.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY.

Prof. George Edgar Vincent May Be Requested to Take Charge of the Institution.

Prof. George Edgar Vincent, who is prominently mentioned as the possible successor of Seth Low in the presidency of Columbia university, is one of the most capable educators in America, and at present an associate professor of sociology in the University of Chicago. He is a son of Bishop Vincent, of the Methodist Episcopal church, and for more than a dozen years he has been conspicuously associated with the work of the Chautauqua movement, the vast importance and possibilities of which he was one of the first to see. In 1885 Prof. Vincent was graduated from

He was tendered his present post in the University of Chicago in 1892, and has collaborated with Prof. Small in the production of text books, upon the science of which he is a special student and an able teacher. He is not yet 40 years old, and hence may be said to belong to the ever-growing group of young men who are gradually filling up the big places in American institutions of higher education.

The famous giant redwood tree in Nevada is 119 feet in circumference.

OVER THE FALLS.

A Woman Goes Over Niagara in a Barrel.

The Trip was Made on the Canadian Side and the Performer was Only Slightly Injured—She is 50 Years of Age and a School Teacher—A Remarkable Feat.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Mrs. Annie Edson Taylor, 50 years old, went over Niagara Falls on the Canadian side Thursday afternoon and survived, a feat never before accomplished and indeed never attempted except in the deliberate commission of suicide. She made the trip in a barrel. Not only did she survive, but she escaped without a broken bone, her only apparent injuries being a scalp wound half an inch long, a slight concussion of the brain, some shock to her nervous system and bruises about the body. She was conscious when taken out of the barrel. The doctors in attendance upon her last night said that though she was somewhat hysterical, her condition is not at all serious and that she probably will be out of bed within a few days.

Mrs. Taylor's trip covered a mile ride through the Canadian rapids before she reached the brink of the precipice. Her barrel, staunch as a barrel could be made, was buffeted through those delirious waters, but escaped serious contact with rocks. As it passed through the smoother, swifter waters that rushed over into the abyss it rode in an almost perpendicular position with its upper half out of the water.

As it passed over the brink it rode at an angle of about 45 degrees on the outer surface of the deluge and descended as gracefully as a barrel can descend to the white foaming waters 158 feet below.

True to her calculations the anvil fastened to the bottom of the barrel kept it foot downward and so it landed. Had it turned over and landed on its head Mrs. Taylor's head must have been crushed in and her neck broken. The ride through the rapids occupied 18 minutes. It was 4:23 when the barrel took its leap. It could not be seen as it struck the water below, because of the spray, but in less than half a minute after it passed over the brink it was seen on the surface of the scum-covered water below the falls.

It was carried swiftly down to the green water beyond the scum, then half way to the Maid of the Mist landing it was caught in what is known as the Maid of the Mist eddy and held there until it floated so close to the shore that it was reached by means of a pole and hook and drawn in upon the rocks at 4:40 o'clock, or 17 minutes after it shot down the cataract. Ten minutes later the woman was lifted from the barrel and half an hour later she lay on a cot at her boarding place in Niagara Falls, on the American side. She thanked God she was alive, thanked all who had helped her in any way, said she would never do it again, but that she was not sorry she had done it, "if it would help her financially."

She said she had prayed all during the trip.

The barrel in which Mrs. Taylor made the journey is 4½ feet high and about three feet in diameter. A leather harness and cushions inside protected her body. Air was secured through a rubber tube connected with a small opening near the top of the barrel.

Mrs. Taylor is a school teacher and recently came here from Bay City, Mich.

Bay City, Mich., Oct. 25.—Mrs. Anna E. Taylor, of this city, who went over Niagara Falls in a barrel, before leaving here said she desired to attract the attention of museum and theatrical managers in order to secure money to provide a home for herself. She said she was the owner of a ranch in Texas, left her by a relative, which was heavily mortgaged.

BURNED AT THE STAKE.

A Louisiana Negro Meets Death at the Hands of a Mob.

Columbia, Miss., Oct. 25.—The negro Bill Morris, who assaulted Mrs. John Ball, at Balltown, La., was burned at the stake yesterday. After being captured he made an effort to implicate others, but they proved their innocence. Morris was taken to the scene of his crime and chained to a pine sapling. His hands and feet were bound to his body. Pine knots and pine straw were piled about the body and saturated with coal oil and the match applied. The negro made no outcry when the flames first reached him and only when he was partly consumed did the spectators notice any movement on the part of the wretch. He made no resistance when being bound to the stake and said that he deserved his fate.

Morris beat his victim on the head with a pine knot and thought he had killed her. Going back to Ball's store he took all the change in the cash drawer. He then put coal oil on his feet and also on his tracks when leaving the store. Mrs. Ball, however, recovered consciousness and crawled to her father-in-law's house. He at once gave the alarm and the neighborhood commenced a search for the negro. He was found at his home about four miles from the scene of the tragedy, and in trying to escape was shot and wounded in the hip.

May Call Out the Military.

London, Oct. 25.—An error committed by provincial police has led to the premature leaking out of the fact that the war office contemplates the possible contingency of having to call out every volunteer in the country. The war office has distributed to the police offices throughout the kingdom bills ordering all reservists, militia, yeomen and volunteers to report themselves to headquarters, with the view of active service. These bills are accompanied by letters ordering that the bills bekept in a safe place until orders to post them are received.

We, at least, are satisfied that President Roosevelt acted from a high sense of duty in inviting Booker Washington to his table. We may commend his action, or we may deprecate or even condemn it, but we cannot help recognizing Mr. Roosevelt's entire good faith in the matter. So far, not even his political enemies have ventured to assert that he did it to win votes, even though the negroes hold the balance of power in at least a dozen states lying just north of the solid south. This evidences a reputation to be proud of.

Two Conspiracies.

"It will be recalled," says the Pittsburg Commercial-Gazette, "that when the time came for the election of a successor to United States Senator Quay, the Senator being a candidate for reelection, certain suits were brought against him in the Philadelphia courts. These suits were were so timed as to drag along during the legislative session of 1899, and the charges made were worked to the limit, to put it mildly, to prevent the return of Col. Quay to the United States Senate. The conspiracy succeeded to the extent that the conspirators were able to deadlock the Legislature and prevent an election. But members of the General Assembly had not reached their homes after final adjournment before Senator Quay was completely vindicated and acquitted. The conspiracy to ruin him had failed. The conspirators by the liberal use of money between sessions of the Legislature were able to make a show of force at the session of 1901, but their power had been broken and Senator Quay, the choice of the people, was again elected to represent the Commonwealth in the Upper House of Congress.

"The persons who were behind the conspiracy to ruin Senator Quay are now behind the slanderous attack on Judge Potter. They are not so bold now as when they attacked Quay, for then they seized upon the machinery of justice to further their base political designs, whereas now they merely seek publicity through the columns of a newspaper. Their conspiracy against Quay failed utterly, but they have financed this new conspiracy in the hope of getting a man of their own choosing on the Supreme bench. Imagine the choice of such an unscrupulous gang as a member of the highest tribunal of this great commonwealth! The people have rebuked them before and will rebuke them again. Judge Potter will be elected by a majority that will be all the larger because of the villainous attack on him. The people of Pennsylvania refused to give executive and legislative control into the hands of the hungry and thirsty assassins of character; they will be even slower to give them control of the judiciary."

Stricken With Paralysis.

How Good Manners Saved Him.

This anecdote proves the profitable character of good manners and was told to me by a descendant of the gentleman who owned them: Mr. M. of —— was a rebel in 1745. He was taken and was being brought to the tower with Kilmarnock and Balmerino. A block stopped the sad cortege, and a lady, looking from a window, cried, "You tall rebel" (Mr. M. was 6 feet 4 inches), "you will soon be shorter by a head!"

"Does that give you pleasure, madam?" said Mr. M.

"Yes, it does."

"Then, madam," said Mr. M., taking off his hat and making a low bow, "I do not die in vain."

Lady —— was moved. She made interest for Mr. M. There exists a paper in the hand of George II. to this effect: "Let Lady —— [the name is obliterated] have access to her tall rebel and be hanged to her."

The royal clemency was extended to Mr. M. I saw his pardon, beautifully engrossed within a decorative border and framed, on the wall of his descendant's study. It is fair to add that practically the whole county of Ross and also the Earl of Sutherland petitioned for the life of the courteous Mr. M.—Andrew Lang in Longman's.

How to Grow Short.

If you climb a mountain, your height decreases by three-quarters of an inch, and it may even diminish, exceptionally, by a full inch.

This is a fact known to all experienced mountain and Alpine climbers. On reaching the summit of the heights that form the pleasure ascents of holiday makers in the Alpine districts the stature of the climber is found to have become less to the extent already mentioned.

Doctors think that the attitude assumed of necessity in ascending is the cause of this diminution. Some persons believe that the pressure of the atmosphere produces this shrinking. In favor of the medical theory there is the other unquestionable fact that the decrease of stature is greater in those who carry a heavy pack during the climb.

When the Alpinist has descended to the ordinary level, his height begins to increase, but the normal length of the body is not attained until several hours after reaching the regular surface of the earth.

King of Virginia.

Apropos of the British royal titles a reference to colonial possessions appeared in an English sovereign's designation so long ago as the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The poet Spenser dedicated his "Faerie Queen" to Elizabeth, and then he described her as "queen of England, France and Ireland and sovereign of the Dominion of Virginia." It may also be remembered that the Virginians refused to acknowledge Oliver Cromwell's protectorate until he sent a fleet to compel them to do so. Charles II., in return expression of the colonists' loyalty, had himself proclaimed in Virginia on his restoration as "king of Great Britain, Ireland and Virginia." The further statement has been made that Charles caused the arms of Virginia to be quartered with those of England, Ireland and Scotland. Certain it is that they appear so on English coins struck as late as 1773 by order of George III.—Liverpool Post.

A Turkish Bank Note.

The bill is on imperial green paper, a color held sacred in Turkey, which the government alone is permitted to use. On the top and sides are the following words in Turkish, "To be paid to the bearer, without interest, 20 piasters." At the top of the note is the sultan's toghra, surrounding which is a quotation from the Koran. Underneath are the words, "Twenty piasters, paper money, to be used in the place of gold at the Bank of Constantinople." At the base of the note is the seal of the mint and on the back the seal of the minister of the treasury. The toghra is considered sacred and is guarded by the three highest officials of the mint, whose sole duty is to watch it.

Nut Foods.

Nearly all nuts contain large percentages of nitrogenous constituents and fats. In the nut kernel there is very little waste—in fact, the nourishment is in a concentrated form, and for that reason nuts are best combined or taken with other foods. They are especially valued for their fine, meaty flavor, which is found in no other vegetable food product.

Turks and Coffee.

Coffee reached Constantinople about 1554 and was of universal use in Mohammedan countries before the close of the sixteenth century. So essential was it deemed to domestic happiness that a Turkish law recognized a man's refusal to supply his wife with coffee as sufficient ground for her claiming a divorce.

Sinnamahoning Liars' Club.

The liars club is in fine working order at present. They met in Ed Locey's chicken coop and initiated Harry Ward and George Chase. The evening being too cold Ward smashed all the furniture in sight. Catching coons and bears was the principle topic for the evening. There was some whoppers sprung. Hanscom was not present which gave Jordan full sway, and he told about the famous hound he used to own, that caught eighteen coons in one night. The dog swallowed the entire lot and never broke a bone, and the smallest coon weighed 27 pounds. Harry Ward doubted the story a trifle and Sam Win threw a big quid of standard navy in Clyde's face and a terrible racket followed. Pap had to get his jug out to restore order.

Analyzing His Affection.

The young lovers sat beside the waterfall. The rapids and the nearby whirlpool had a strange attraction for the romantic young girl. She had heard the story of the unhappy Indian maiden and the young brave who had gone to their doom, clasped in each other's arms, to the slow music of the "Swan Song." That seemed very beautiful to her.

"Jack," she said, "if you saw me struggling in the water near the edge of the falls, would you jump in after me?"

"What would be the use, my dear, when I can't swim?" he answered.

"But at least we could perish together," she replied bravely.

"Yes, there would be no doubt of that," he returned, shuddering at the sound of the cruel waters.

"But haven't you often said you would die for me?" she asked, piqued at his coldness.

"No, my dear," replied her practical lover. "If you'll remember, I've always told you that I had an undying love for you!"—Smart Set.

Patti's Escort.

Adelina Patti, the great singer, on one of her tours of Europe was due at Bucharest on a certain date. Owing to inclement weather, however, madame declined to budge from Vienna, and the poor manager went nearly distracted. As storming had not the slightest effect on her serene highness the manager set his wits to work. Soon afterward a telegram arrived from Bucharest, stating that a brilliant deputation of Roumanian nobles, with a torchlight procession and military band, was to receive the diva. The message was handed to Mme. Patti, who was enchanted, and at once made ready to start. On arrival, the band played and the torches flared, and madame was put in the best of spirits by being escorted to her hotel by the Roumanian nobles. It is not known what she would have said had she been told that the "nobles" were hired from the streets and dressed up for the occasion by a representative of the manager.

Grazed In the Fog.

It is not usual for a ship on the high seas to elect to cast anchor on the deck of a passing steamer, but that is what a four masted schooner did once in the Atlantic. The two vessels grazed in the fog, and the "catted" port anchor of the schooner caught in the steamer's deck "by a fluke." It fastened to an engineer's stateroom in such a manner as to bar his exit; but, fortunately, the chain parted just as the room was being ripped into fragments. The schooner followed the steamer to its destination to recover her anchor.

Cleaning the Clock.

A farmer has an ambitious son, 12 years old, who, being left alone for a few hours the other day, tried to clean the clock. He easily got the clock to pieces, but his difficulty lay in putting them together again after cleaning.

At this task he was only partly successful, and upon his father's return home he eagerly exclaimed:

"Father, I've cleaned the clock and got enough works left over to make another one!"—Exchange.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railroad station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larison says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by L. Taggart.

Tot Causes Night Alarm.

"One night my brother's baby was taken with Croup," writes Mrs. J. C. Snider, of Crittenden, Ky., "it seemed it would strangle before we could get a doctor, so we gave it Dr. King's New Discovery, which gave quick relief and permanently cured it. We always keep it in the house to protect our children from Croup and Whooping Cough. It cured me of a chronic bronchial trouble that no other remedy would relieve." Infallible for Coughs, Colds, Throat and Lung troubles, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. Taggarts.

A Fiendish Attack.

An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain, nor sit in a chair except propped by cushions. No remedy helped him until he tried Electric Bitters which effected such a wonderful change that he writes he feels like a new man. This marvelous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50c at L. Taggart's Drug Store.

The Democracy Swallowed.

From the Lancaster New Era.

The State Democracy appears to have been swallowed bag and baggage by the Wanamaker nondescripts, whose longer stay in the Republican party was rendered uncongenial by their failure to secure the offices. They accordingly turned their attention to the Democracy, whose managers welcomed them with open arms, placed them in the chief seats at the political table, and by way of showing their appreciation of their new found friends unceremoniously kicked out the old-line Democrats who for years had faithfully borne the party banner, but who refused to change their principles at the command of the multi-millionaire managers. The fact that the representatives of the party in State convention absolutely prohibited what Boss Guffey has just carried through did not cause a moment's hesitation. It is certainly a remarkable situation, and there is little cause for surprise that the Democrats in all parts of the State are outspoken in their refusal of support to the new combination. It must certainly be a pretty nauseous mess that is presented to our Democratic friends.

Those Rural Boxes.

We are having so called free rural mail delivery from Driftwood, over Mason Hill, down Driftwood branch and it is undoubtedly a great convenience, but at the present time we think we are being imposed upon by a mail box trust. It seems that Congress witheld from the Postoffice Department the power to decide what kind of boxes the patrons of rural routes should use for the reception of their mail matter. And yet we who live along a mail route find that a way has been discovered to create a trust that will if not checked be far reaching in its results. I understand that the Post Office Department has assumed the authority to "approve" a certain pattern of mail box manufactured under the Bates Hawley patent, and some inspectors and postmasters construe such "approval" to have the force of law, and the postmaster refuse to send mail to any person who will not buy the "approved" box at a cost of $2.50 or $3.00 each, while if met with competition without official approval it would sell for forty or fifty cents each. Now ninety per cent of the patrons of the mail route take their mail from the boxes within a few minutes after it is left by the carrier. For such persons a weather-proof wooden box costing nothing but the labor of attaching to a post suffices to supply every consideration as a receptacle for mail matter and is much more convenient for the carrier, and we believe fills both the letter and the spirit of the law. No doubt this was the intention of Congress when it authorized no stipulation as to the character of such boxes. If any person desire to place their mail under lock and key it is perfectly right to require all such persons to provide themselves uniform boxes that the carrier can open with a single key, but this affords no excuse for compelling patrons to buy complicated boxes.

But now comes the demand and all patrons are told they must either purchase a new "approved" box at the cost of $2.50 or go to the office for their mail as they did before the route was established. About all of the patrons of this route have had their mail changed the mail formerly coming to Sterling Run and to have it changed again will make no end of bother, as all parties concerned seem satisfied, why not let the boxes remain as before? Heretofore it has been the boast of the Postoffice Department that the most humble citizen could always secure a hearing and redress of grievances by applying to the Department at Washington but letters that have been written seem to be almost wholly ignored and have brought no relief. I think this fraud should be exposed and the parties brought to justice.

Driftwood, Pa., Oct. 21, 1901.

[Our correspondent evidently is laboring under a misapprehension. We are reliably informed that the department does not compel the patrons to purchase any particular letter box but submits fourteen different patterns ranging in prices from $1.25 to $3.00 To give U. S. protection it is absolutely necessary that certain stipulations must be lived up to and "any old thing" from an abondoned tin pail to a soap box would soon cause trouble. Our advice to the patrons of the route is that they select and place in position a regulation box and stop kicking. The service now given the Mason Hill people does not pay the department and too much fault finding might cause the abandonment of the service.]—EDITOR.

Having cut loose from the Republican party the organizers of the Union party and their sympathizers must expect to be treated as enemies. They have a perfect right to enlist under whatever banner they please, but they should not complain when they get in the way of the hot shot from the stalwart breastworks. An unholy political alliance brings its own pangs, says the Harrisburg Telegraph.

A large force of carpenters are on hand to-day to work on Martindale's new hotel at Brooks Run. Work was delayed several days, both mills at Austin being broken down the lumber could not be sawed out as soon as expected.

Washington Bailey departed this life at Wharton on Thursday last. Services were held at the Gilmore school house on Sunday, Rev. Holland officiating. Interment was made in the Gilmore cemetery. His children were all at the funeral, Mrs John Schwartz being summoned from Pittsburg and Mrs. M. E. Coder from Straights, Pa. There was a very large concourse of relatives and friends present. Mr. Bailey's age was given as 72 years, although some seem to think he was older. He had been sick almost a year. Mrs. E. E. Bailey and little daughter also attended the funeral.

Ezra Logue returned last week, looking hale and hearty, from his second trip to the Klondyke, where he has been rafting and running lumber down the Yukon.

Mason Hill.

Love is the perfume of life.

Miss Griffin, our efficient teacher, called on her parents at Driftwood on Sunday.

Two bright young Democrats came to the ranks of the Republican party at the last caucus.

No new cases of diphtheria, and Mr. Ray Jordan is decidedly better and his recovery is looked for.

W. J. Lane, wife and daughter Ava, were in Huntley visiting the venerable Nelson Jordan, who is in poor health.

Mrs. Wilson Hey, of St. Marys, was called here by telegram on account of the serious illness of her brother, Ray Jordan.

Mr. Marshal Barr accompanied Mr. Yothers on his visiting trip to the voters of Mason Hill. He could not have had better company.

Walter Yothers passed over the Hill Monday looking at his political fences and thinks he has a nice majority enclosed, and so say all.

Mrs. M. A. Losey, of Sinnamahoning is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Barr on Round Top. No one is more welcome than Mrs. Martha Losey on the Hill.

The venerable G. W. Tanner, while on his way to Driftwood with a load of meat and cabbage, last Saturday, ran a narrow chance for his life. The tongue of his wagon dropped down and the horses made a dash ahead and jerked the wagon onto their heels, which made them jump the more fiercely, pulling him out in front of the wagon on his head and shoulders, the wagon passing over his limbs, but he held to the horses, (which are a spirited team) and after dragging him some rods he succeeded in turning them into a stump fence, and now the old gentleman is hardly able to get around.

The campaign is drawing to a close and next Tuesday will be the end of it. Just one-half of the candidates will feel good and the other half will feel bad. Yothers is making a manly fight and there are every indication ot a successful issue. Walter is an ideal candidate, well fitted for the office for which he will be elected next Tuesday and will fill the office with dignity and honor. Good men can be trusted to do their part correctly, bad men are not wanted anywhere but at the mourners bench. Every Republican that goes to the polls on Tuesday next, should and will, cast their votes for Walter Yothers, and will feel that they have done an act that they will always be proud ot, and I. M. RIGHT.

THE KEEPERS OF THE SEAL.

I sing the song of labor, of the lowly smelling soil,
The whirling of the spindle and the whirring of the wheel;
The hand that guides the plowshare and the rugged soon of toil—
The sinews of the country and its weal.

For the pulses of the nation beat within the sturdy arms
That are bared before the anvil, or they wear an humble guise;
And the sentinels of liberty, the shields from war's alarms,
Are wholesome hearts and honest seeing eyes;

Those who feel the sweat of labor ere they break the wage of bread,
Nor covet goods beyond the pale that bounds an honest reach;
But give to God the glory, and the thanks that they are fed,
And rather live a principle, than preach.

Ah! God of Heaven, pity for the chilling drops that creep
In tortuous threads, where living strength should swell the nation's veins;
The sloth that cumbers progress, and the useless drones who steep
The curse that follows idle hands and brains.

I sing the song of labor, for the keepers of the seal,
For a new day broke in radiance on the warders of the land;
Clearer thought to those who ask it, heaping store to those who kneel;
To the sons of stalwart heart and horny hand.

CHAPTER VI.—CONTINUED.

Morton looked at Barbara, and Barbara glowed. Then she cast her eyes on the floor.

"Yes, I suppose such a building is in keeping with our social settlement plans," Morton replied, somewhat stiffly. "But Miss Clark probably wishes to work out her—plans—independently."

"There's such a thing as being too independent!" quoth Mrs. Vane, sharply.

"I suppose there is," answered Barbara, faintly, and then sat silent. The thought of being in any sense connected with Mr. Morton gave her a feeling of bitter sweet.

"Well, think it over!" Mrs. Vane continued, with what seemed like unnecessary sharpness. "I don't know but that I shall make the gift conditional on its being used in the social settlement plan. So you needn't ask me for any money to-day, sir," she said, turning to Morton.

"Thank you, Mrs. Vane. I know how to take a hint," he replied, gravely. And then he caught Barbara's look as she glanced up from the carpet, and his tone made Barbara laugh a little nervously. He joined in it, and Mrs. Vane kept them company.

"I don't know what the joke is about," she said, at last, as she rubbed her nose again as if in disappointment.

"It's just as well, perhaps," Morton said. "Some jokes cannot be explained, not even by the makers of them."

He seemed to make no motion to go, and after a few minutes more of general talk about the proposed house, during which nothing more was said about the settlement, Barbara rose and said she must go, as she had some work to do before tea-time.

Mr. Morton instantly rose also.

"May I walk with you, Miss Clark? My calls take me your way."

"Certainly," Barbara murmured, and they went out together.

Mrs. Vane watched them from the window as they went past. The old lady was still rubbing her nose in some vexation.

"If he isn't thinking a good deal more of her than of the social settlement just now, then I'll give twenty thousand towards it instead of ten," she said, and then added: "They couldn't either of them do better. And if he doesn't have sense enough to know what is good for him, I'll try to help him out."

Barbara and Mr. Morton walked down the street, talking about everything except the proposed building and the social settlement plans. After the first moment of embarrassment at the thought of walking with him had passed, Barbara was relieved to feel quite at her ease. She had never looked prettier. She had a gift of vivacious conversation. Mr. Morton was not her equal in that respect, but he was at his best when he had a good talker with him. They had just finished some innocent play at repartee and were laughing over it when, as they turned the corner towards the Wards, they met Mrs. Dillingham and her daughter.

Instantly Barbara's face became grave, and Mr. Morton as he raised his hat seemed equally sober. The Dillinghams passed them with what seemed to Barbara unusually severe faces. The light of the afternoon suddenly went out. She was no longer a college graduate, an educated young woman the equal, in everything but wealth, of this glorious creature she had just passed; she was only a hired girl, a servant. And the gulf that yawned between her and the minister was too deep to be bridged. It was folly to be happy any longer. Happiness was not for her; only ambition was left, and even that might not be possible if this social settlement plan was to be involved in hers, and—

"I beg pardon, Miss Clark, but did I hear you say the other night at Mrs. Vane's that you or your mother had known the Dillinghams before you came to Crawford?"

Mr. Morton was coming to the relief of her embarrassment.

"No, mother is related to one branch of the family. Mrs. Dillingham has been very kind to me since that evening," she added. "I have not been courteous, hardly, in response to her invitation."

"It's a very nice family," Mr. Morton said, quite tamely.

"Yes, Miss Dillingham is a remarkably beautiful person, don't you think?" Barbara was not quite herself, or she would not have asked such a question.

"She is not as beautiful as some one else I know," replied Morton, suddenly, and as he said it he looked Barbara full in the face.

It was one of those sudden yieldings to temptation that the young minister in his singularly strong, earnest, serious life could number on his fingers. He regretted it the minute the words were spoken, but that could not recall them. Over Barbara's face the warm blood flowed in a deepening wave, and for a moment her heart stood still. Then, as she walked on, she was conscious of Mr. Morton's swiftly spoken apology as he noted her distress.

"Pardon me, Miss Clark. I forgot myself. I—will you forget—will you forgive me?"

Then Barbara had murmured some reply, and he had taken off his hat very gravely and bowed as he took leave of her, and she had gone on with a flaming face and a beating heart.

"He asked me to forget it? I cannot," she said, as she buried her face in her hands up in her room, while the tears wet her cheeks. "He asked me to forgive it. Forgive him for saying what he did? But it was not anything very dreadful." She smiled, then frowned at the recollection. " silly compliment that gentlemen are in the habit of paying. But was it silly, or was he in the habit of paying such? Was it not a real expression of what he felt—" She put her hands over her ears, as if to shut out whispers that might kill her ambitions and put something else in their place. But when she went down to work a little later she could not shut out the picture of that afternoon. She could neither forget nor forgive. O Barbara! If he could only know how his plea for forgiveness was being denied; and with a smile, not a frown in the heart!

The rest of that week Mr. Morton stayed away from Mrs. Ward's, although Mr. Ward had expected him to tea on Friday. He sent a note pleading stress of church work. Mr. Ward commented on it at the table.

"Morton is killing himself already. He seems to think he can do everything. He won't last out half his days at the present rate."

"He needs a good wife more than anything else," Mrs. Ward said, carelessly. "Some one ought to manage him and tell him what to do."

"Yes, I suppose every woman in the church knows just the girl for him, and is ready to hint her name," Mr. Ward remarked.

"If he marries anyone in Marble Square parish it will create trouble. It always does," said Mrs. Ward.

"I think Morton has sense enough to look out for that," replied Mr. Ward, briefly.

Barbara heard every word as she was serving at the table, and feared her face might betray her. But Mrs. Ward, in whom Barbara had never confided, as she had in Mrs. Vane, did not detect anything; and Barbara found relief by retiring soon to her kitchen.

"PARDON ME, MISS CLARK."

The following Sunday she had an experience which added to her knowledge of the position she occupied as a servant, and led up to the great crisis of her life, as she will always regard it.

Since entering Mrs. Ward's family she had not attended evening service in any of the Crawford churches, owing to her desire to spend that time with her mother. But on this particular Sunday following her interview with Mrs. Vane and her talk with Mr. Morton, she decided that she would go out to the Endeavor meeting at the Marble Square church. There was no service after the Christian Endeavor meeting on this Sunday evening, as it was the custom one Sunday in every month to give the whole evening to the society and its work. The minister was in the habit of attending this service and giving it his special notice, sometimes by making a direct address on the topic of the evening, or by taking a part assigned to him beforehand by the leader.

When Barbara went in that evening, the large, handsome chapel of the Marble Square church was rapidly filling up. The talented, earnest, handsome young preacher was very popular with the young people, and the society had increased rapidly in membership and attendance since Morton's arrival.

The usher showed Barbara to a seat about half way down the aisle. As she sat down she noticed Mr. Morton talking with a group of young people down in front. When they separated, he looked up and saw her, and, coming down the aisle, he gravely shook hands, and then introduced her to the young woman next to her. He then went to the door, greeted some of the members coming in, and then went around by a side aisle and sat down on a front seat just as the meeting began.

It had been a long time since Barbara had attended a Christian Endeavor meeting. She felt that she was growing rather old for it, but to-night she enjoyed it thoroughly. When the time came for Mr. Morton to speak, she was surprised to find how her anticipation of what he had to say was not spoiled by anything he said. It was all so manly, with such a genuine, real fragrance to it, so tinged with healthy humor, so helpful for real life, that it helped her. She was grateful to him. Like the first sermon she had heard him preach, his talk to-night made her feel the value of life and the strength of effort in God's world.

Then suddenly, while she was looking at the earnest, eloquent face, the consciousness of the remoteness of his life from hers smote her into despair. When the service was over, she did not want to remain to the quiet, social gathering that followed. But her neighbor to whom Morton had introduced her asked her to come into the little gathering of other visitors and strangers who were being received by an introduction committee and made welcome to the society, the committee giving all strangers topic cards and other printed matter belonging to the society, and introducing them to one another as well as to members.

It was one of the new methods pursued by this committee to ask all strangers to sign a little card giving the address of the newcomer, so that some one of the society might call during the week, and, if necessary, act as escort to the next meeting. One of these cards was given to Barbara; and in a spirit of perversity, growing out of her feeling regarding her position, she signed her name and put under it the words: "House servant at Mr. Ward's, 36 Hamilton street."

It was altogether unnecessary for her to be ostentatious with her position; but she was not perfect, and felt an unnatural desire to test her reception right in Mr. Morton's own society. A few of the young people in the Marble Square church knew who she was and what she was doing, and with a few exceptions she had been treated with great kindness, no discrimination whatever being made. But the majority of the young people did not know her, and to-night she was plainly dressed, her face was bearing marks of the weariness of the strain of the last month's work, and it was not surprising that she was suspicious of every suggestion of a slight.

When the committee and the other strangers finally went out and mingled with the others in the large room, Barbara thought she detected a distinct coldness to her. She was certain her name and her position had been whispered around among the young people. As she afterward found out, she did the committee an injustice, as they had not told anyone of her work. But she was left alone in the midst of all the others, and in spite of her habits of self-control and her previous experiences she began to feel a bitterness that was contrary to her sweet nature.

She looked around the room, and noticed Miss Dillingham talking with a group of older girls who had begun to come in the society a little while after Mr. Morton's call to Crawford; and she went over to her and spoke to her.

And then it was that Miss Dillingham, who was not perfect any more than Barbara, did as wrong a social act as she had ever done in her life. She simply nodded to Barbara without saying a word, and went on talking without introducing her friends to Barbara or taking any other notice of her.

Barbara instantly stepped back away from the group, while her face glowed and then paled. As she turned sharply around to go out of the door which was near, Mr. Morton confronted her. He had witnessed the little scene.

"You will always be welcome in our Endeavor society, Miss Clark," he said, while the color that mounted to his face was as deep as hers.

"I shall never come again so long as I am a servant!" replied Barbara, in a tone as near that of passion as she had ever shown to him. And with the words she opened the door and went out into the night, leaving him standing there and looking at her with a look that would have made her tremble if she had lifted her face to his.

CHAPTER VII.

WE CANNOT CHOOSE IN ALL THINGS.

When Barbara went ont into the darkness after that scene with Miss Dillingham, it was more than the darkness of physical night that oppressed her. She thought she realized with a vividness more real than she had ever before experienced the gulf that separated her from the young minister of Marble Square church. With almost grim resolve she said to herself: "I have dreamed a vain dream. I will give myself up now to my career. Whatever ambition I have shall center about the possibilities of service. He can never be anything to me. It would risk all his prospects in life even if—even if—he should come to care for me—" Her heart failed at the suggestion, for there had been intimations on the part of the young preacher that Barbara could not help interpreting to mean at least a real interest in her and her career.

"But no, it is not possible!" she said positively as she walked on. "His life is dependent on social conditions that he must observe. For him to ignore them must mean social loss and possibly social disgrace. The minister of Marble Square church care for a hired girl! Make her his wife!" Barbara trembled at the thought of the sacred word which she hardly whispered to her heart. "Even if she were as well educated and well equipped for such a position as any young woman in his parish, still, nothing could remove the fact of her actual service. And service," Barbara bitterly said to herself as she neared home, "service is no longer considered a noble thing. It is only beautiful young women like Miss Dillingham, who have nothing to do, who have the highest place in society. A girl who is really doing something with her hands to make a home a sweeter, more peaceful spot is not regarded by the world as worth more than any other cog in a necessary machine. Society cannot give real service any place in its worship. It is only the leisure of idle wealth and fashion that wins the love and homage of the world."

"And the church, too," Barbara continued in her monologue, after she had bidden her mother good night and gone up to her room. "The church, too, in its pride and vainglory is ready to join the world in scorn of honest labor of the hands." She recalled all the real and fancied slights and rebuffs she had endured in the church and from church people since going out to service, and for a few minutes her heart was hard and bitter toward all Christian people. But gradually, as she grew quiet, her passion cooled, and she said to herself in a short prayer: "Lord, let me not offend by judging too hastily; and if I am to lose out of my life my heart's desire for love, do not let me grow morose or chiding. Keep me sweet and uncomplaining. How else shall I help to make a better world?" A few tears fell as she prayed this prayer, and after a few minutes' quiet she felt more like her natural, even-tempered self.

A BRUTE MET HIS MASTER.

Inhuman Immigrant Driver Receives a Vigorous and Well-Deserved Rebuke.

He was the conductor of one of those big trucks that transfer immigrants who are simply passing through New York from South Ferry to the dock or train that they are scheduled to board. And he was very officious, feeling his authority as well as his superiority over the young men and women consigned to his care. They, with that half-startled and altogether conciliatory smile which characterizes the newly landed, were taking his abuse and perhaps congratulating themselves that they didn't understand the language, although his meaning was perfectly clear, relates the New York Times.

"Here, there," he shouted to a very pretty Swedish girl. "Sit down, you!"

At the same time he caught her by the shoulders and brutally pushed almost knocked, her over on a basket filled with immigrant effects. Her offense had been to take an interest in one of the tall buildings on lower Broadway.

She didn't protest—but some one did. It may have been simply a fellow countryman or it may have been a big brother who had come on to New York to greet the newcomer. At all events, he was not a "greenhorn." He had the easy air, the substantial clothes, and the self-reliance that comes from several years' residence in the country. Besides he had the shoulders of an athlete and a fist like a sledge hammer. Stepping from the walk into the street, he caught the offender exactly as the fellow had handled the girl, and, thundering in excellent English: "Sit down, you!" he grought him sprawling to the sidewalk.

"How you like it?" he asked, innocently.

The immigrants looked on and smiled.

Not Such a Fool as He Looked.

Some of the inmates of a Yorkshire asylum were engaged in sawing wood, and an attendant thought that one old fellow, who appeared to be working as hard as anybody, had not much to show for his labor.

Approaching him, the attendant soon discovered the cause of this. The old man had turned his saw upside down, with the teeth in the air, and was working away with the back of the tool.

"Here, I say, J——," remarked the attendant, "what are you doing? You'll never cut the wood in that fashion. Turn the saw over!"

The old man paused and stared contemptuously at the attendant.

"Did ta iver try a saw this way?" he asked.

"Well, no," replied the attendant. "Of course I haven't."

"Then hod thy noise, mon," was the instant rejoinder. "I've tried both ways, I hev, and—" impressively—"this is t' easiest."—London Spare Moments.

Thoughtful Husband.

Parting is hard to bear, and the young man who endeavors to soften its pangs for his bride of a month certainly deserves commendation. "And now that our honeymoon is over and we are settled in our own home, must you leave me for three whole days for the sake of business, Henry?" asked the clinging wife in a tone of reproach. "I must, dear Isabel," said the young husband; "but to make the separation seem less abrupt, I am going on the accommodation train instead of the express."—Youth's Companion.

CRYSTALLIZED FRUITS.

They Form a Delightful Adjunct to the Housekeeper's Store of Holiday Dainties.

The manufacture of these sweetmeats is really quite a simple matter, coming easily within the capabilities of the ordinarily clever housewife, while the expense of preparing them is very small. Of the various fruits best adapted to this purpose, peaches, pears and plums, pineapples, cherries and currants, are the most generally used, and are prepared as follows: Stone the peaches, plums, etc., by making a small incision in the side, through which the seed is slipped, pare and quarter the pears, and cut the pineapple into slices half an inch in thickness, across the fruit. Weigh and allow an equal quantity of the best white sugar, make a rich sirup, adding one small cup of water to each pound of sugar. Boil for a few minutes, together, then add the fruit and cook gently until clear, but unbroken. Remove carefully on a wire strainer and let it stand about an hour, or until perfectly cold, then sprinkle liberally with powderd sugar, and stand the strainer on a dish in a moderately warm oven for two hours. At the expiration of that time turn the fruit, sprinkle as before with the sugar, repeating the process until the juice has quite ceased to drip, and the outside is dry and crystallized. It is then removed from the oven and allowed to get perfectly cold, before being packed away in small boxes between layers of waxed papers. Thus packed and stored away in a dry place, it will retain its perfect condition for an indefinite length of time, forming a charming adjunct to the housekeeper's store of "extras." It is perhaps necessary to add a word of caution in regard to overheating the oven, the exact amount required being ascertained by experimenting, since too great a degree of heat will most effectually change a delicious sweetmeat into the toughest of leather.—Good Housekeeping.

PRINCESS WALDEMAR.

Member of Denmark's Royal Family Who Has Achieved Distinction as a Sculptor.

The object which attracted the greatest attention at the recent charity bazar held in Copenhagen was the sculptured hippopotamus, modeled by Princess Waldemar of Denmark. The princess, who has long since preferred the study of art to social festivities, and who has won no little success as a painter, has now determined to devote her time almost exclusively to sculpture, a step that has won universal approbation from the leading art critics of Denmark.

Princess Marie of Orleans is the wife of Prince Waldemar, youngest brother of Queen Alexandra. She is said to be the most popular woman of the court of Copenhagen, and is a remarkable character. Shortly after her marriage she had an anchor tattooed on her shapely arm, saying: "I am a Danish sailor's wife, and I want to do just as the others do."

Beside her penchant for sculpture and sailing, the princess has another hobby. She is an enthusiastic fire fighter, and has just been adopted by the Copenhagen fire department as an august mascot. Some have gone so far as to call her the "fire laddie princess," and report has it that she does not object to the title.

American society is doubly interested in Princess Marie just now, because she and her husband will visit the United States next January, a compliment paid to this country in return for the visit of the United States ship Hartford, which cruised in Danish waters last summer.

Peculiar Sect of Women.

Among the villagers on the Volga in the province of Samara a curious sect of women has made its appearance. It was originated by an elderly peasant woman in Soznavo, called the "Blessed Mother." These women have fled from the villages around into a remote district, where they live singly in holes dug out of the face of the hill. They lead a life of fasting and prayer, and believe themselves called from the world which they think is shortly about to perish in general conflagration. The "Blessed Mother" has "ten wise virgins" as a sort of bodyguard, and the sect believes that these 11 women are possessed with miraculous powers.

GRACES LONDON PULPIT.

Mrs. James Brown Potter Is Asked to Assist at Sunday Evening Services.

Mrs. Potter, the American actress, has been offered a salary by a London church to assist in the Sunday evening services. The plan is that she recite for the congregation at a given time in the course of the exercises. She will dress in her own conventional garments and in no way introduce sensational features.

London is still talking of the tremendous sensation produced by Mrs. James Brown Potter the first Sunday she electrified a fashionable London church audience by her recitations. The rector, with whose family Mrs. Potter was visiting, proposed to her that she recite certain hymns as an addition to the evening service. Mrs.

MRS. JAMES BROWN POTTER.

Potter agreed to do so and readily consented to do all in her power to make the recitations as effective as possible.

The following Sunday evening, just as the rector finished his sermon, she stepped in front of the audience and with great feeling recited one of the most touching hymns in the Episcopal hymnal. Many of the audience were moved to tears. The church, which had been packed in anticipation of the innovation, was as still as the proverbial pinfall during the talented woman's part of the programme. Mrs. Potter was dressed all in white and recited in a low but perfectly distinct tone.

Mrs. James Brown Potter will be remembered as the society woman who foresook the social world for the stage. Sixteen years ago she was a belle at Newport and New York, and her pretty home in Washington square was the center of New York life. But discontent entered and Mrs. Potter took to the stage. For many years her husband expected her to return, but gradually hope died out and it became known that the brilliant society bud had become no less a brilliant flower of the stage.

In the Potter home there was a small child, Anne Urquehart Potter, called "Fifi," who was left to her father's care. Miss Potter recently married Mr. Stillman, son of the New York banker. Between mother and daughter during the many years that have intervened there has been little communication. Once they met, some years ago, but no tenderness passed between them.

Mrs. Potter is one of the most striking woman of the stage. Not young in years, she has preserved her girlish looks and is positively youthful on the stage. At her country seat near London she spends her days out of doors, and when a reporter visited her recently she was picking roses in the garden, the very picture of sweet 16 in figure and in artle grace.

HOW TO TALK WELL.

An Accomplishment That Adds More to the Beauty of Home Than Rich Furnishings.

A gracious presence and cheerful, well-modulated voice have more power to create beauty in the home than all the luxuries that money can buy. The parent and teacher cannot overestimate their moral value also. They forestall opposition, allay irritation, and prepare the way for receptivity. What is called "personal magnetism" is largely capable of analysis. If a stiff, uninteresting person has genuine kindliness and sincerity, though he have only ordinary endowments, he can be transformed by correct training.

A husky, dull or weak voice may be made pleasant and clear, a slovenly enunciation may become elegant, a slouching gait dignified, and an unattractive person may become winsome. The charm of manner consists in its graces, its simplicity and its sincerity. Cultivate a pleasant manner of laughing. Keep the voice sympathetic and cheerful. A mother or teacher with a querulous voice is responsible for much misbehavior.

Look with interest, but without staring, at the person with whom you are talking. Do not let your eyes wander over her clothes or round the room. Be simple and sincere. Be yourself a good listener while another is talking. While talking to a number of people scattered round a room, even though you are telling the story especially to one, let all the others feel that their presence is recognized and their interest is appreciated. Hold each one pleasantly with your eye.—Watchman.

Story Told by a Mother.

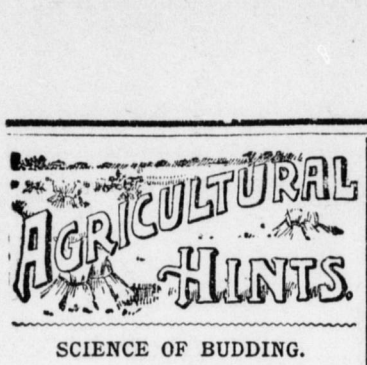
SCIENCE OF BUDDING.

Clip This Article and Study It Carefully as Often as You Get the Time.

Budding is the operation of setting a single bud, bearing little or no wood, upon the surface of the stock. It is the method most commonly employed in propagating fruit trees. There is no general rule of when to bud, but it can be done at any time when the buds of the new growth are sufficiently formed for setting and the bark on the stock will peel or slip easily. Early summer or June budding is practiced to a considerable extent by nurserymen on peach and plum trees, where they wish to obtain a growth from the bud the same season. New and valuable varieties are usually worked in this way.



METHOD OF SETTING BUDS.

Among northern nurserymen and fruit growers, budding is commonly practiced in July and August. Orchardists are taking up this system of propagation and using it in place of or in connection with top grafting. If the buds fail to live the branches can be grafted the following spring. The operation is more easily and quickly done than grafting.

The illustrations show clearly the different steps in the operation. A branch of the new growth with well developed buds is selected (a), the leaves cut off, leaving part of the leaf stem a half-inch or more in length. This serves as a handle in setting the bud. A sharp budding knife is used, having a rounded point and an ivory tongue to raise the bark. The bud is cut (b) so as to take off a thin strip of wood. A slit is made lengthwise in the bark of the stalk one and one-half inches long and a transverse cut at the top of this, as shown at c. The edges of the bark are peeled back and the bud slipped in as at d, being pushed down to the position shown at e.

Strips of raffia are commonly used to tie it. The string is started below the bud with a full turn and then placed above where another full turn is taken, when it is again passed below and tied, as shown at f. The edges of the bark are tied down securely over the bud, but not so tight as to stop circulation.

The bud should be examined within a week or two. By this time it will have become fast, if it does not fail to grow, and the raffia should be cut with a knife to allow for the growth of the stock. Unless this is done the rapidly growing branch will outgrow it and soon be spoiled. Nothing more needs to be done with the bud until the following spring, when the stock should be cut off with an oblique cut about one inch above, and all buds on the stock should be rubbed off to aid the growth of the initial bud.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Inferior Butter Injures Trade.

Inferior butter lowers the price and injures trade in that article. It would be considered an offense to inform the wives of some farmers that they do not know how to make good butter; yet thousands of pounds of butter reach the market that could be of a higher grade if the farmers and their wives were not prejudiced against "fancy farming." A silo, a pure-bred animal or improved methods of farming are regarded as innovations, being forced on farmers only after more progressive neighbors leave the former methods behind and find profit in so doing.

Calves Need Gentle Care.

The calf should be gently handled from the start. The future disposition of the cow depends upon her treatment when young. To make a gentle milker the calf should never receive a blow or a harsh word, in order that it may have confidence in the attendants, and it will not thereafter be nervous. It is easier to break in a calf than to worry with a vicious kicking cow.

THE FARMER'S PAINT.

White Gives the Best and Most Harmonious Effect in a Setting of Green.

Many of our readers may not be able to do the painting of the home and outbuildings that was contemplated last spring when the crops were planted. The drought will undoubtedly prevent much of the usual farm improvements, yet it is wise to study all phases of the subject and be prepared to do this work, which is intended to be decorative as well as preservative, most effectively.

How many farmers when riding through a section have noted which color of paint has best displayed the house and barn on the farm? If thought is given the matter they will note that the dark colored paints at a distance give the appearance of no paint, or of much worn paint. On the other hand, observe the well-painted white house. It can be seen a long distance, is harmonious with its setting of green and looks clean and thrifty. At least in our study of the painting of farm homes this has been our deduction that the "white house" is the one that should adorn the farm. Farmers may not regard this feature in painting of importance, but if the home is ever put on the market for sale appearance will increase its money value, and the family will be more wholesome for the gratification of taste.

A durable whitewash, which is said to embellish the east end of the president's house at Washington and that is used by the government to whitewash lighthouses, can be effectively used on many buildings, is as follows:

Take half a bushel of unslaked lime. Slack it with boiling water. Cover during the process to keep in steam. Strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer. Then add a peck of salt, previously dissolved in warm water; three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste and stirred in while hot; half a pound of Spanish whiting and one pound of clean glue, previously dissolved by soaking in cold water and then by hanging over a slow fire in a small pot hung in a larger one filled with water. Add five gallons of hot water to the mixture, stir well and let it stand for a few days covered from dirt. It should be applied hot, for which purpose it can be kept in a kettle or portable furnace.

A pint of this whitewash mixture, if properly applied, will cover one square yard. It is almost as serviceable as paint for wood, brick or stone, and is much cheaper than the cheapest paint. —Rural World.

ADULTERATED MILK.

Sold in Enormous Quantities in Large Cities in Spite of Rigid Pure Food Laws.

A New York justice, in fining some milk dealers for watering their milk, told them that if they came before him again and were convicted of the same offense he would send them to the penitentiary. It is asserted by the officials in charge of the enforcement of the laws against food adulteration that it is almost impossible to prevent the watering of milk. So alarming have conditions become that the Medical Society of the County of New York has appointed a committee to devise methods of improving the milk supply of New York city. Doubtless the doctors have found the bad milk one of the greatest obstacles in the way of the recovery of their patients and the thrift of children forced to live upon it. The above-mentioned commission has hit upon what it believes to be a practical scheme. It has selected a few dealers that are known to be above suspicion and has issued to them a label that may be used on each bottle of milk, certifying that the milk in the bottle is pure. By so doing it is hoped the consumers will buy only of those dealers that have or may have the labels. By this means the rogues should be frozen out of business.—Farmers' Review.

A SERVICEABLE GATE.

People Can Pass Through It Easily, But Cattle and Horses Cannot Find Entrance.

It frequently happens that much passing to and fro is done through certain fences where it is not desirable to have animals pass. In such cases the simple device shown in the accompanying cut will be found to serve admirably in the place of a gate or bars, and it is very easy to build. Having driven the center post and constructed the two cross-arms (which should be about two by three inches and 2½ feet long), bore a three-quarter-inch hole in the top of the post and through the center of the cross-arms. Ream out the hole in cross-arms a little so that it will work easily. Put it in position and drive a three-quarter-inch iron bolt into top of post. The head on the bolt will keep the revolving cross-arms in position. People can pass through easily, but cattle and horses cannot.—Ohio Farmer.

An Objectionable Practice.

The practice of hauling back skim milk and whey from factories in the same cans that are used for milk is objectionable. If this cannot be avoided the cans should be emptied at once on reaching home, and thoroughly cleaned and sterilized.

A report from Supt. J. C. Gluck, Reform School, Pruntytytown, W. Va. Oct. 18th, 1900. "After trying all other advertised cough medicines we have decided to use Foley's Honey and Tar exclusively in the West Viaginia Reform School. I find it the most effective, and absolutely harmless." L. Taggart.

"I had long suffered from indigestion," writes G. A Le Deis, Cedar City., Mo. "Like others I tried many preparations but never found anything that did me good until I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. One bottle cured me. A friend who had suffered similarly I put on the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. He is gaining fast and will soon be able to work. Before he used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure indigestion had made him a total wreck. R. C. Dodson.

Instruction is a teacher, but Example is an artist, and our emotions are the colors he mixes on the heart's palette.

Nothing is so like a gentleman as a gentlemanly knave.

The thanksgiving number of The Ladies' Home Journal is replete with good fiction and interesting and novel features. It opens appropriately with an article which tells "Where the President's Turkey Comes From." Then there are delightful stories by Hezekiah Butterworth and Laura Spencer Porter, and a new love story called "Christine," by Frederick M. Smith. Cleveland Moffett has an interesting story about Ira D. Sankey, the great evangelist, and Edith King Swain recounts the famous ascents she has made in various parts of the world. Will Bradley's original designs for a house begin with the breakfast-room, and Wilson Eyre, Jr., presents plans for a country-house and a garden. Mr. Bok gives much good advice to young married couples in his editorial. Another most timely feature is "Why Should a Young Man Support the Church?" by the Rev. Francis E. Clark. Many home-made Christmas gifts are shown, and the first of "The Journal's Amusing Puzzles" appear. The regular departments are exceptionally good and the illustrations superb. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar a year; ten cents a copy.

THE CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL R'Y.

Many people unacquainted with the geography of the West imagine that because the names "Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul" are used in the corporate title of the railway owning the Short Line between Chicago and Omaha, they must go via the cities of Milwaukee St. Paul to reach their destination—and if it be Omaha or west thereof. This is a mistaken idea. On a map the line running directly east and west would look like this:

Omaha——————Chicago.

There is nothing more simple than that, and it is less than 500 miles between Chicago and Omaha. Two through trains daily in each direction with the best Sleeping Car and Dining Car Service, and all regular travelers know and appreciate the merits of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway's Short Line between the East and the West.

Cure Too Expensive.

Warts are curious things. They come and go mysteriously, although their going is frequently marked by exasperating delays, and there are almost as many infallible cures as there are warts, the only trouble with these cures being that they are useless when applied to the particular wart you happen to have. They are only good for other people's.

"In my opinion," said a clubman, who was discussing the subject with a friend one day, "a wart is merely the outward correspondence of some mental excrescence. Get rid of that, and it goes away.

"Let me give you a bit of my own experience," he continued. "Last year I went to Europe. For about three years I had had a wart on my little finger, on which I had tried everything I could hear of, but without effect. It only grew larger.

"Well, in the excitement of preparing for the trip and of the journey itself I forgot all about my wart, and when I looked for it about six weeks later it had vanished without leaving the slightest mark. I simply forgot it, and it had no mental condition to feed on. I see you have one on the back of your hand. Forget all about it for a few weeks, and it will go away of itself."

"Yes," said the other clubman, shrugging his shoulders, "but I can't afford to take a trip to Europe for the sake of curing one wart."—Youth's Companion.

Giving Her a Lesson.

The habit of describing things as "awfully jolly" was amusingly satirized by a gentleman who came home prepared to chat on events of the day. An acquaintance had failed in business. He spoke of this incident as "deliciously sad." He had ridden in an omnibus with a friend whom he described as "horribly entertaining," and to crown all he spoke of the butter which had been set before him at his restaurant as "divinely rancid."

"Why, dad, you are going off your head!" said his youngest and most impertinent daughter.

"Not in the least, my dear," he said pleasantly. "I'm merely trying to follow the fashion. I worked out 'divinely rancid' with a good deal of labor. It seems to me rather more effective than 'awfully sweet.' I mean to keep up with the rest of you hereafter. And now," he continued, "let me help you to a piece of this exquisitely tough beef."—London Telegraph.

The Man Faced Crab.

One of the most singular looking creatures that ever walked the earth or "swam the water under the earth" is the world famous man faced crab of Japan. Its body is hardly an inch in length, yet the head is fitted with a face which is the perfect counterpart of that of a Chinese cooly, a veritable missing link, with eyes, nose and mouth all clearly defined. This curious and uncanny creature, besides the great likeness it bears to a human being in the matter of facial features, is provided with two legs which seem to grow from the top of its head and hang down over the sides of its face. Besides these legs, two "feelers," each about an inch in length, grow from the "chin" of the animal, looking for all the world like a colonel's forked beard. These man faced crabs fairly swarm in the inland seas of Japan.

A Devoted Mother.

Although looked upon as vermin and destroyed accordingly, the weasel is a good mother and probably treats her young ones more kindly than many of her human enemies treat theirs. A weasel, carrying something in her mouth, was once seen to enter a hole in a tree. The observer, applying lighted straw, soon smoked her out. She then darted toward a stone wall, near which she was attacked by a terrier, which speedily slew her. She fell an easier victim because of the burden she bore in her teeth. Anxious to see what this was, the onlooker went forward and found it was a baby weasel. The mother's nest in a field close by had been plowed up, and she had been searching for another home. As her youngster could not run she carried it in her mouth rather than leave it to perish.

The Adornment of an Arab Girl.

Arab girls before they enter the harem and take the veil are a curious sight to behold. Their bodies and face are dyed a bright yellow with turmeric. On this ground they paint black lines with antimony over their eyes. The fashionable color for the nose is red, green spots adorn the cheeks, and the general aspect is grotesque beyond description.—"Southern Arabia," by Mr. and Mrs. T. Bent.

Cologne Cathedral.

One would think that the identity of the architect of such a superbly designed building as the Cologne cathedral could not possibly be lost to the world. But it is. The cathedral took centuries to build, and many architects have modeled parts of it according to their own ideas. The result is the most beautiful cathedral in the world.

The Ivory Nut.

The vegetable ivory nut of commerce is the albuminous seed found in the drupes of a dwarf palm. From these nuts European turners fashion the reels of spindles, small boxes and many other little fancy articles, which can be colored with sulphuric acid.—Chambers' Journal.

Antiprofanity.

In Switzerland and Italy good people go about with little cards containing pledges against swearing. These are presented whenever the bearers hear some one indulging in profanity. The penalty for violating the pledge is a small self imposed fine, to be paid to charity.

Be Sure You Lead.

The man who would like to know something about astronomy must lay out a little scheme of study for himself, get the books which are necessary and have them at hand the moment he is at leisure. The man who wishes to familiarize himself with political economy, with politics or with industrial questions, which are now of such importance, must find out what textbooks he ought to have, secure those textbooks and keep them by his side.

The man who wishes to know literature does not need to lay out an elaborate plan which fills him with discouragement by its very magnitude, but he does need to decide what author he is going to read next, and he does need to get the book and keep it within easy reach.

Almost all the great classics are now published in such portable forms that a man can carry a play of Shakespeare, the essays of Bacon, the poems of Tennyson or of Browning, a translation of "Faust," Matthew Arnold's criticisms, Emerson's essays or John Burroughs' charming transcriptions of nature in his coat pocket and substitute them for the newspaper which is thrust in his face by an eager newsboy and which he buys because he has nothing else to read.—Success.

One Hopeful Sign.

While I was living in California, writes an Englishman, I had the opportunity of noting the extreme consideration shown to employees by California employers. I cannot recall an instance of a cruel and cutting rebuke from one in authority to a clerk or servant during the seventeen years of my stay.

A friend of mine had a clerk who was always forgetting important duties. Letters would be forgotten, important entries on the books omitted, and messages even were sometimes not delivered. Said my friend to me one morning:

"Really, I must speak to John."

So John was summoned, and I wondered what manner of rebuke would fall upon his head.

"John," said my friend, "it is most astonishing what a very bad memory you have. But I believe that in time it will improve, because I have noticed that you have never once forgotten to draw your salary on the first of the month."

John took the hint, and after that my friend was more faithfully served.

Antiquity of the Water Pump.

The water pump of today is but an improvement on a Grecian invention which first came into use during the reign of Ptolemies Philadelphos and Energetes, 283 to 221 B. C. The name, which is very similar in all languages, is derived from the Greek word pempo, to send or throw. The most ancient description we have of a water pump is by Hero of Alexandria. There is no authentic account of the general use of the pump in Germany previous to the beginning of the sixteenth century. At about that time the endless chain and bucket works for raising water from mines began to be replaced by pumps.

In the seventeenth century rotating pumps, like the Pappenham engine, with two pistons, and the Prince Rupert, with one, were first used. Pumps with plunger pistons were invented by Morland, an Englishman, in 1674, and the double acting pump by De la Hire, the French academician.

Funny Speeches.

Grose relates that Caulfield, meeting Mr. Thomas Sandby, said: "My dear Sandby, I'm glad to see you. Pray, is it you or your brother?" It was a Spaniard who remarked ingeniously that an author should always write his own index, let who will write the book. Edgeworth relates the story of an English shopkeeper who did pretty well in the direction of the bull proper when, to recommend the durability of some fabric for a lady's dress, he said, "Madam, it will wear forever and make you a petticoat afterward." This is quite equal to the Irishman's rope which had only one end because the other had been cut away.—Temple Bar.

Keeping Butter.

Good butter will keep sweet for many weeks when it is placed in a crock after being made into rolls wrapped in strong cheesecloth or old muslin and then covered with a brine strong enough to bear up an egg. Saltpeter and sugar may be added to advantage while the brine is still hot in the proportion of a teaspoonful of the former and a tablespoonful of the latter to every four quarts. The brine must, however, not be poured upon the butter until it is entirely cold.

To Varnish Bronze.

To make a brilliant black varnish for bronze make a bath of equal parts of nitrate of silver and nitrate of copper. Dip the articles to be treated into this liquid and allow them to remain there for some time. Upon withdrawal heat them over the flame of an alcohol lamp until the black potina color has been reached.

His Wants Were Few.

"What'll you have?" she asked severely at the breakfast table, for he had been out late the night before and she had not yet forgiven him.

"I think," he replied meekly, "that I would appreciate a genial smile and a pleasant word about as much as anything."—Exchange.

"The Best Husbands In Europe."

An English gentleman living in Italy whose daughter's husband was an Italian officer said, "Italians make the best husbands in Europe if they have good wives."—London Mail.

No man is a safe guide who acts from selfish motives. Follow rather the man of principle who has only the broadax of the common good to grind.

'Twas an Irish Bull.

Before the days of proper safeguards a good many cattle got in the paths of Michigan railroads and were killed outright or so badly injured as to necessitate putting them out of misery. These happenings frequently afforded the owners of the cattle an opportunity to bring suit against the railroad companies, so that the employees were required to be very careful as to details and to keep a strict record of the manner of a cow's death, etc. Regular printed reports of such cases had to be turned in by the section master, who was required to fill out blanks stating the probable age of the deceased animal, weight, color, distinguishing marks and disposition of carcass, the animal being sometimes cut up and sold for beef.

Naturally it was an Irish section "schuperintindher" who, like Finnigan in his terse report of a wreck, simply stated, "Off ag'in, on ag'in—Finnegan," made out the record of a certain bovine tragedy in a characteristic way. Mike guessed pretty well at the age and weight and color of the dead cow, but when he came to the line "disposition of carcass" he scratched his head reflectively.

"Sure," he muttered, "she doied aisy, annyway." Then opposite the line he scrawled, "Kind and gentle."—Detroit Free Press.

What a Daub of Ink Did.

A certain newspaper proprietor had a way of appearing in the composing and press rooms at the most unexpected times, and as his visits often resulted in a general "shakeup" of the working forces of the paper they were awaited with fear and trembling by the employees.

One time one of the pressmen, an excellent workman, who had been there many years, but was sometimes guilty of a lapse of sobriety, had a black eye and was in a quandary as to what excuse he should offer if the proprietor noticed it. By a sudden inspiration he seized an ink roller and daubed some ink on his face, quite covering the discoloration. Presently the governor came in and, with the foreman, went through the room, commenting on every detail and looking very sharply at every workman. When about to leave, he suddenly pointed to the inky pressman and said, "What is that man's name?"

The man quaked in his shoes until he continued slowly: "I want you to give that man 5 shillings a week more wages. He is the only man in the room who looks as if he had been working."

Something to Brace Up On.

It was along about noon when a well dressed man lined up against the bar. He had the air and looked the part of a high liver, but there was every sign of a bad night. He stretched himself, rubbed his head and said to the bartender:

"I want something to brace up on."

"All right, sir. "What'll it be?"

"Get the large lemonade glass and break five eggs in it."

Chapman, the bartender, looked at him suspiciously and hesitated.

"That's what I want," he ordered.

Chapman broke five raw eggs in the glass and waited for further orders.

"Now a pint of champagne."

Chapman opened the bottle, and the customer poured it on top of the eggs and, taking a spoon, stirred the mixture thoroughly and then drank it. Then he paid his bill and walked out.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Prunes as Medicine.

That the fruit possesses very considerable virtue in this respect is conceded by most eminent authorities, and for this reason as well as on account of their food value they are included among the foods suitable for invalids, children and those whose digestive powers are rather inactive. Their influence is mild, which fact makes them desirable for the not over robust.

A dish of well cooked rice and prunes, made dainty and attractive for serving, is a dish to serve for either a breakfast, luncheon or a dessert, especially for the child or invalid, and should be added especially to our list of hot weather dishes, frequently replacing meat and potatoes and heavy, unseasonable desserts.

A Man of Experience.

"You are quite sure, Uncle Bushrod," she queried, "that Judy has no idea there are only books in those two boxes you took this morning over to the courthouse in the cart?"

"Miss Ma'y," answered the old chap, with dignity, "I done had three wives, an' Judy's de las', I reckon. An' I jes' tell you dis, honey, I don' trus' no colored 'ooman's tongue."—Mrs. Burton Harrison in Lippincott's.

Bodily Proportions.

The proportions of the human figure, says an anatomist, are six times the length of the right foot. The face, from the highest point of the forehead, where the hair begins, to the end of the chin, is one-tenth of the whole stature. The hand, from the wrist to the end of the middle finger, is also one-tenth of the total height. From the crown to the nape of the neck is one-twelfth of the stature.

The Original Pair.

Upon one point the disputants are agreed: Man descended from a pair of ancestors. Who they were is not so apeparent.—Chicago Tribune.

Happiness is sometimes like a pair of spectacles. While one looks for it it sits astride one's very nose.—New York Times.

If a man saved the ash of all the cigars he smoked, he would have consumed 1,600 before he had a pound of ash.

Peculiarities of Footpaths.

Footpaths are what roads are not, natural productions, just as the paths made by hares, deer and elephants are. No one really makes a footpath—that is, no one improves it. What is true of central Africa is true of England.

"The native paths," wrote Professor Drummond, "are the same in character all over Africa. Like the roads of the old Romans, they run straight on through everything—ridge and mountain and valley—never shying at obstacles nor anywhere turning aside to breathe. Yet within this general straightforwardness there is a singular eccentricity and indirectness in detail. Although the African footpath is, on the whole, a bee line, no fifty yards of it are ever straight. And the reason is not far to seek.

"If a stone is encountered, no native will ever think of removing it. Why should he? It is easier to walk around it. The next man who comes by will do the same. He knows that a hundred men are following him. He looks at the stone a moment, and it might be unearthed and tossed aside; but, no, he holds on his way. It would no more occur to him that that stone is a displaceable object than that felspar belongs to the orthoclase variety. Generations and generations of men have passed that stone, and it still waits for a man with an altruistic idea."—Spectator.

The right arm is always a little larger than the left, but the left foot is almost always larger than the right, presumably because while nearly every man uses his right arm to lift a weight or strike a blow he almost invariably kicks with his left foot, while the lounger stands on his left leg and lets his right fall easily, because he has learned by experience that this is the best attitude he can assume to prevent lassitude and fatigue.

This constant bearing of the weight on the left foot makes it wider than the right, and it often happens that a man who tries on a shoe on the right foot and gets a close fit has to discard the shoes altogether because he cannot endure the pain caused by the tightness of the left. If when riding on the street car you will take the trouble to notice, you will see that in laced shoes the gap is much smaller on the right foot than on the left, while with button shoes the buttons have to be set back ten times on the left shoe to once on the right.

A Tussle With English.

The pitfalls of the English tongue to a foreigner are many. A Frenchwoman who has undertaken housekeeping in New York thought she had a good working knowledge of the language, but soon discovered her mistake.

One day she called a carpenter and planned with him to have some work done about the house in the way of putting up shelves, etc., and she went over the ground with him as carefully as possible to get from him an estimate of what it would cost.

After the work was done the bill submitted was considerably in excess of the sum first named. The Frenchwoman endeavored to remonstrate, but only succeeded in making the following remarkable statement to him:

"You are more dear to me than when we were first engaged."—New York Sun.

Almonds.

The world's almond crop, exclusive of those raised in California and the west, comes from Italy, Sicily, Majorca, Spain, France, Portugal, Morocco and Algiers. The highly prized Jordan almonds come from Malaga, Spain, and not from the Jordan river, as many people suppose. The common almond is the most indigestible of all the nuts and contains very little nourishment. There are many ways, however, in which it is advantageously used as a desert or as a flavoring. One peculiarity about the almond tree is that its leaves contain prussic acid and are therefore poisonous, while the fruit may be eaten with impunity.

A Sure Thing Sport.

A well known politician on setting out for a day's sport with a friend pointed to a large spaniel which lay apparently asleep in the hall and bet his friend a guinea he could not attract the dog's attention.

The bet was readily accepted, and after the failure of a shrill whistle and a blank cartridge to cause the slightest movement the guinea was delivered up.

"That's my old dog Mahatma I had stuffed a few weeks ago," laughed the politician, "and that's the tenth guinea he's brought me."—London Tit-Bits.

Italian Bees.

Italian bees are more hardy than the native and more profitable. They are more energetic and will gather honey in partial droughts when natives will do nothing. They will gather honey from blossoms that natives will not touch. They are stronger on the wing, will fly more directly and swiftly and are not so irritable.

Gen. Pass. Agt., Rochester, N. Y.

DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN CURES INDIGESTION.

REPUBLICANISM MEANS PROSPERITY.

"The people in this state and country think for themselves and are quite able to sit as jurors and determine between right and wrong, between that which has succeeded and that which has failed.

They know that the country is prosperous, and they know that the Republican party brought it about. They know that if all of the corruption which is charged by them, villifying our public men, were true, then this country, instead of having overflowing treasuries would long ago have been bankrupt; its business instead of being prosperous would be utterly prostrated; that morality instead of being our boast and pride would not exist except in Democratic or Insurgent families; and that all our influence abroad, instead of being felt for good and for the uplifting of the people of the earth, would be a stench and a curse.

"The people can be trusted to estimate these defamers at their true value, and to take their vile insinuations and allegations as the ravings of men who are beside themselves with rage because the citizens of the country knowing how they have misrepresented and maligned our best public men in the past, now do not believe a single word they say.

"Thoughtful, patriotic and discriminating citizens will not heed the cry of the yellow journals and the Democratic press.

"The very fact that they are on the other side will be sufficient to elect Potter and Harris by an overwhelming majority."

EVERY PATRIOTIC AMERICAN SHOULD VOTE THE FULL REPUBLICAN TICKET ON TUESDAY NEXT, NOVEMBER 5.

PENNSYLVANIA WILL STAND BY ROOSEVELT

A Republican Victory Assured at Next Tuesday's State Election.

A MESSAGE TO THE WORLD

The Keystone State Will Herald That She Is Still Loyal to the Flag, the National Administration and the Party of Patriotism, Protection and Prosperity.

(Special Correspondence.)

Philadelphia, Oct. 29.—The closing days of the campaign in the state find the Republican leaders confident of a sweeping victory in Pennsylvania.

This confidence is based upon the belief that the Republican committeemen will leave nothing undone to get every stalwart Republican voter to the polls. It is natural that in what is known as an "off year's" campaign there would be apathy among the voters but the Republican leaders hold that at this election there is an issue which should appeal to every patriotic citizen.

It is known that President Roosevelt is deeply interested in the progress of the political contests in the several states and that his supporters throughout the country are exceedingly anxious that the returns shall show sweeping Republican victories in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Massachusetts, Maryland and other states in which there are exciting contests now under way.

EYES ON PENNSYLVANIA.

The eyes of the world have been upon the American people since the terrible assassination of President McKinley. There has been much speculation as to the extent to which the anarchistic sentiment has spread and in the far off Philippines, the natives have been influenced by the reports they have received misrepresenting the condition of affairs in this country as the outcome of the killing of the President.

The news of the assassination had scarcely reached the Philippines than there was found to be increased activity among the insurgents. The attack upon the brave soldiers of the Ninth regiment followed and many were killed in ambush.

Democratic victories at the coming election would be heralded as uprisings of the people against the "government," and it is hard to calculate the extent of the dangers that would come to the soldiers of the United States now in the Philippines as the result of such reports spreading among the natives.

GOOD MAJORITY PREDICTED.

Republican Pennsylvania, it is predicted, will give to President Roosevelt a vote of confidence and support such as will leave no doubt of the attitude of the patriotic citizens of this commonwealth towards the national administration and the Republican party.

Governor Stone, who has been in the different sections of the state, predicts that Pennsylvania will give more than her normal Republican majority in off years, and that there will be a crushing rebuke administered to the men who have combined with the Democratic party to disrupt the Republican organization of Pennsylvania.

FLINN DISAPPOINTS UNIONISTS.

The Wanamaker adherents, who comprise the active spirits in the Union party, have been banking upon the support of Senator William Flinn in the opposition to the Republican state ticket.

Senator Flinn spoke from the same platform with Governor Stone at McKeesport last Saturday night and urged his followers to support the full Republican ticket.

Among other things, Senator Flinn said:

I have given the best years of my life in an effort to make the Republican party strong in Pittsburg and in the county of Allegheny, and while it is a well-known fact that I have been anxious to be relieved, and have been relieved, of the onerous position of chairman of the Republican city executive committee of Pittsburg, and while my business interests have grown to such magnitude that I cannot in the future give politics the same amount of time I have given it in the past, yet I am anxious and earnest in my efforts to have the Republican organization or Allegheny county, as well as the Republican organization of the city of McKeesport and the Republican organization of the city of Pittsburg, under its new chairman as energetic and successful in the future as it ever has been in the past. I therefore earnestly entreat every friend I may have in the city of McKeesport to vote the Republican ticket and by his work and labor, help and assistance, poll such a Republican majority as will speak in no uncertain terms of the position of McKeesport upon the question at issue this fall.

While they did not capture Flinn, the program of the insurgents for the remaining days of the canvass includes a scheme to have sympathizers announce their purpose to cut the Republican ticket and then hail each one of these as a gain to their cause.

The facts are that all of their supposed converts are really Union men, but they hope to create a stampede, as one of their leaders confidentially stated, through this last hour game.

The Wanamaker control of a number of newspapers will enable the Union men to play all sorts of sharp practices through Philadelphia newspapers in the closing days of the canvass, but the people have come to recognize the worth of these insurgent sheets, and they believe very little they see in them on matters of state or local politics.

The Republican ticket in Philadelphia will be elected by about 50,000 majority.

VOTERS WILL DO THEIR DUTY.

This state more than any other state in the Union, has been the beneficiary of the Republican policies so ably advocated by the martyred President. It is unnecessary to refer to the smoke and flames belching forth from her many furnaces, that were idle and becoming junk, under the policies of the opposition.

The eyes of the world are upon the voters in Pennsylvania.

Are they going to re-endorse the national policies, and thus speak for the further up-building of the industries of this great state, by an old time majority for the state ticket, or are they through dissensions and petty quarrels, going to become assistant Democrats and place Pennsylvania in the doubtful column in the congressional elections next year?

Business demands confidence and stability in the national policies. The slightest retrograde movement means loss of confidence. Every voter has an opportunity on November 5, next, to speak to his congressman; to speak to congress itself; to strengthen backbones that may be weakening, and to declare to the world that Pennsylvania stands by the policies of the martyred President; upholds the hands of the brave statesman Roosevelt, and demands of congress prompt action along lines of legislation that will extend our trade, build more factories, set every wheel in motion and give to every laboring man employment at good pay.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY.

On November 5, next, in many states in the Union the citizens will be given their first opportunity to re-endorse the policies of our late President, who laid down his life in the service of his country.

They will also have their first opportunity to say to the world in unmistakable tones by their votes that they have joined hands with President Roosevelt to carry out the McKinley policies and that there will be no retrograde movement, no side issues considered, until every policy that will upbuild the country, employ its labor and bring to us proper share of the wealth of the world, has been fully tried and tested.

Every voter has a duty to perform. He should not shirk that duty by staying away from the polls.

Every Republican knows that when he voted for President McKinley he benefited himself, and he voted for him the second time. The bullet of the assassin has undone his work. Roosevelt is President. Every Republican should vote to endorse and uphold him. Vote to tell him the people will surely elect a Republican congress to help him carry the country to a greater prosperity than ever before, and in doing so, every citizen will vote to benefit himself and to continue the present good times.

AN ELASTIC CONSCIENCE

Remarkable Case of Coray, Democratic Nominee for Treasurer.

TWELVE YEARS WORKING OUT

After Enjoying the Benefits of State Money, Funds Are Returned to the State Treasury When He Became An Aspirant for Higher Public Office

(Special Correspondence.)

Harrisburg, Oct. 29.—Conscience is a mighty power.

It has caused the return of thousands of dollars into the public funds of every nation of the globe—it has sent men to jail on their own confession for crimes which they had committed, and its terrors have been pictured in the reality and on the stage as long as man has had a conscience.

But in all the cases of embezzlement and murder, and the return of stolen funds, this article, Conscience, appears to have had a time limit.

Its workings have not always been instantaneous, but have been reasonably prompt.

A year or two or three, or even five years has generally sufficed to bring the guilty man to the appreciation of the heniousness of his crime. When a Conscience slumbers beyond that period, it is liable to become indurated, hardened, so to speak, and to lose that fine sensibility which appeals to the ordinary mind.

But there is a case now confronting the people of Pennsylvania which breaks the record—a case in which Conscience has slept for 12 years, and has finally awakened at an opportune time (WHEN ITS POSSESSOR IS SEEKING A PUBLIC OFFICE) and has become quite a lively factor.

This is the case of Hon. E. A. Coray.

NOT A POPULAR CANDIDATE.

Mr. Coray has been an Insurgent-Wanamaker Republican for some years. He is now running for state treasurer on the Union party ticket and on the Democratic ticket, although thousands of Democrats have announced their intention not to vote for him.

CORAY AND STATE FUNDS.

In the year 1889, Mr. E. A. Coray was a member of the house of representatives of Pennsylvania.

As such, he received AND RECEIPTED FOR TO THE COMMONWEALTH, the sum of $260.35, as expenses while he was upon the committee on appropriations, in visiting and examining the schools, reformatories and prisons of the commonwealth. This charge against Mr. Coray appears upon page 232 of the auditor general's report for 1889.

In 1891, Mr. Coray was a member of the appropriation committee of the house of representatives, and as such received the sum of $291, according to the official statement which appears on page 291 of the auditor general's report of 1893.

It was popularly supposed at the time that these committees of which Mr. Coray was a member made their investigations, that the members obtained free transportation from the different railroad companies, and that the sergeant-at-arms paid the actual living expenses during the various trips made by the committees. This idea may have been a mistaken one, but nevertheless it was and is firmly ingrafted upon the public mind.

Mr. Coray has had a change of heart.

In 12 years from the time he received the first payment, and in ten years from the time he received the last payment his Conscience has awakened.

The result of it is found on page 242 of the auditor general's report of the year 1900, by which it appears that he has refunded cash paid him for the expenses aforesaid, amounting to $551.35.

The case is cited as one in which Conscience does not appear to have traveled by the limited express trains.

It probably got switched off on to some side line during the 90's, and was awakened only when its possessor made up his mind to seek a public office in 1901.

It does not appear to have been a complete awakening, because the use of over Five Hundred Dollars of the state funds for about ten years certainly entitles the commonwealth to some interest.

DID NOT RETURN INTEREST.

A fully awakened and thoroughly aroused Conscience would have remembered this fact, and have also returned an adequate sum for interest.

It is a fair and natural assumption that any person who would be guilty of retaining state funds which did not belong to him for over ten years, would have very little scruples in speculating with the money.

Possibly Mr. Coray may not have indulged in the purchase and sale of stocks or grain, or other speculative commodities, but on the other hand, armed with a margin of Five Hundred Dollars, who shall say what opportunities might not have opened during that length of time to a bold investor.

How is it possible to draw the line upon the guilty Conscience, or to say what its possessor shall do with money which he holds?

If there were any accruing products from such sources, Mr. Coray has forgotten to turn them over to the state.

From a physchological point of view those who have studied the case are entirely at a loss to account for the delay in the awakening of this particular Conscience.

Why it slumbered for ten years, through all the vicissitudes of politics and daily life, and what particular spur instigated it to arouse at a particular moment, are mysteries which they probably never will solve.

The case must be added to those upon record as the most extraordinary one of the kind, and the owner may properly be designated as having not only an elastic, but A TEN OR TWELVE YEARS' CONSCIENCE.

WORKINGMEN AROUSED

A Formidable Movement Against Judge Yerkes.

LABOR WILL ACT TOGETHER

A Vigorous Canvass to Cut the Nominee of the Democratic and Union Parties on Account of His Attitude Toward Their Interests.

(Special Correspondence.)

Philadelphia, Oct. 29.—The action of the labor unions of Philadelphia, Pittsburg and elsewhere throughout Pennsylvania in urging all workingmen to vote against Judge Harman Yerkes, nominee of the Democratic and Union parties for justice of the supreme court of Pennsylvania, has given the politicians of those parties no little concern. It is now known that thousands of voters are now working to bring about the defeat of Judge Yerkes, and that a sentiment against his candidacy has been manifested which will result in many thousands of Democrats voting the full Republican ticket.

The last time the Democratic leaders made the mistake of putting up a candidate objectionable to the labor element, when William M. Singerly ran for governor, they received a crushing rebuke in the defeat of their ticket by an unprecedented majority.

The candidacy of Judge Yerkes has resulted in a similar condition of affairs in the present political campaign.

The organized workingmen throughout Pennsylvania are arrayed solidly against him. The street railway men, the mine workers, the cigar makers, the building trades unions and the hundred and more other labor interests have united to administer a deserved rebuke to the Democratic and Union party leadership that put Judge Yerkes in nomination.

A LABOR ORGAN'S PROTEST.

As an evidence of the feeling on this subject, the following editorial from the official organ of the workingmen of Philadelphia, The New Era, speaks for itself:

A great outcry is being made by the fusionists about preserving the integrity of the supreme court, and it is possible that this hue and cry, raised by the agents of corporations and the interests opposed to labor organizations, may deceive workingmen and entice them to vote for a judge whose utterances and record establish the fact that he is an implacable enemy of trade unions.

The important thing for voters who sell their labor for wages to consider is, what is the attitude of Harman Yerkes to the working class? If they find he has persistently followed the idea prevalent in the dark ages that those who gain a livelihood by toil have no rights that an employer is bound to respect, no issues manufactured by skilled political manipulators should cloud the peril wage earners would be in if Harman Yerkes should be elected to the supreme court.

One of the greatest dangers that menaces workingmen is the subserviency of our courts to the dictation of the trusts and corporations. Judges are now prohibiting workingmen from persuading their fellows to join a union, and punishing the refusal to obey this judge-made law by confiscating the property bought with money saved from their hard earned wages.

The trusts and the corporations find it cheaper to own a judge than to pay the campaign expenses of legislative candidates, and their tools on the bench are not subject to the same free criticism as our law makers.

Corporation judges have it in their power to nullify any law affecting the interests of their masters, and the judicial ermine protects them from the wrath of the people they defraud.

The records of Bucks county show that Judge Harman Yerkes was generously lenient to the corporations while he was heartlessly severe to the unfortunate and erring poor. His friends may say that this is due to his judicial mind, but workingmen have grounds to believe that it was something worse than a judicial mind that impelled him to be lenient to the rich and severe to the poor.

The honest and industrious poor man knows how hard is the struggle for existence, and he is painfully aware of the fact that a week or two of idleness may force him to leave home to look for work.

If an idle workingman looking for work asks for food in Bucks county he will be arrested as a tramp, and if he has a trade union card on him Judge Yerkes will send him to jail as a vagrant. No judge in the days of Edward III of England took greater delight in sentencing the unfortunate, idle workingmen to jail than Judge Harman Yerkes.

The workingmen of Pennsylvania cannot afford to vote for a man so much out of sympathy with the spirit of the times as Judge Harman Yerkes.

The experience workingmen of Philadelphia had with Judge Harman Yerkes convinced them that he was a judicial tyrant who embraced every opportunity to show his enmity to labor unions.

His actions showed that his sympathies are with the interests that are opposed to recognition of the rights of labor.

The records of the men responsible for Harman Yerkes being on the tickets of the fusion parties have convinced union men that he has not changed his convictions and is now more disposed to treat cases in which organized wage earners are concerned with fairness, than he was when he tried the street car men.

No workingman who has the interest of his class at heart should vote for Harman Yerkes. A judge who makes a convict out of an unemployed man commits a crime against the unfortunate.

A judge who favors corporations is a foe to workingmen.

A man who took advantage of his judicial position to stigmatize trade unions as the breeders of riot, and to brand their leaders as ruffians and desperadoes should not receive the vote of a single labor man.

The interests which forced the nomination of Harman Yerkes are opposed to labor organizations.

It is the duty of every workingman who wishes to protect the interests of his class to vote against Harman Yerkes.

Remember that the assassination of President McKinley encouraged the insurgents in the Philippines with the hope that the American government might fall. They at once renewed attacks upon our brave boys of the Ninth Regiment, killing many of them in ambush.

Republican defeat will further incite these insurgents to increased activity.

Every Pennsylvanian should vote the full Republican ticket and help score a great victory for the party of Roosevelt at the election on Tuesday next, November 5.

SCHOOL MONEY PAID.

Never in History of the State Were Payments Made so Promptly.

A MOST MAGNIFICENT SHOWING

Republican Leaders Point With Pride to the Early Settlements In the Various School Districts and the Record of State Treasurer Barnett.

The remarkable condition of the state treasury and the promptness with which the school funds are being paid under the administration of the present Republican state treasurer, has hampered the Union party managers and the Democracy in their political campaigning.

They have been unable to attack the conduct of the present state treasurer, Colonel James E. Barnett, and an investigation into the management of his office has shown that he is entitled to praise of the highest character. He has given close attention to every detail of his administration and has extended a general invitation to all citizens who wish to learn about the condition of the state finances to visit his office and he will submit for inspection all or any of the books or papers that may be in his possession.

CONDITION OF THE TREASURY.

United States Senator Penrose, in commenting upon the matter of state finances last week said:

"Last week I had occasion to refer in a speech in Philadelphia to the remarkable exhibit made by the state treasury of Pennsylvania. I showed that the state of Pennsylvania had never lost a dollar by reason of malfeasance or mismanagement in the whole history of the state; that the state was practically out of debt, owing the inconsiderable sum of $350,000; that the state of Pennsylvania made a more generous provision for public education by far than any of the states, appropriating over 64 per cent. of all the revenues for educational purposes; and that the payments had been made to the school districts up to the present time more promptly and rapidly than ever before in the history of the state.

"I desire again to call attention to this remarkable showing of the school appropriation, because in past years the state treasurer has been bitterly assailed by reason of delays sometimes occurring in the payment of the school appropriations to the various districts.

"These delays have usually occurred by reason of a deficiency in the state receipts, over which the state treasurer had no control and for which he was not responsible, but the fact remains that the administration of the present state treasurer has been so business-like and vigorous that he can proclaim to the people of Pennsylvania that out of 2,500 common school districts in the state but 52 are not paid in full. Of these 52 districts which have not been paid in full five have received nothing as yet. Seven have been paid in part, and 40 are held because certain reports and affidavits required by law have not been filed.

SCHOOL ACCOUNTS SETTLED.

"At this time it will be observed there are but 12 in shape to receive payment in full. Doubtless since my last information from Harrisburg the state treasurer has settled with all the school districts that are ready with their accounts, except two—Pittsburg and Philadelphia—which have been paid in part. The whole school account will this year be settled with the school districts more promptly and at an earlier date than ever before in the history of the state.

"While in past years the state treasurer has had frequent calls from school boards claiming that their collector was slow about collecting taxes and requesting an advance on their appropriation, this year the state treasurer's payments have been so prompt that he has been obliged to turn the tables completely and ask the school districts to file their reports in order that a warrant may be issued for the amount due them.

"The cashier of the state treasury has actually been obliged to send notices to various school districts which have failed to file the necessary affidavit and certificate before a warrant can be issued asking that the law be complied with, as he is anxious to complete the payment of the appropriation to the common schools of the commonwealth without delay.

"The state treasury of Pennsylvania under a Republican administration is certainly entitled to a full recognition on the part of the public of this splendid exhibit of payment of the school appropriation."

It is the duty of
EVERY REPUBLICAN
to go to the polls and vote the full Republican ticket next
Tuesday, November 5.

AN OLD GAME REVIVED

Democratic Denunciation of Republicans Renewed.

THEY ARE AFTER THE SPOILS

The Party of Prosperity Cannot Be Side-Tracked By the Work of Aspiring Politicians With Personal Interests to Serve.

"An effort is being made by the yellow journals and the Democratic press, to belittle the work of the Republican administration in this state through denunciation," said Secretary of Agriculture John Hamilton. "They hope, by the use of noise and vituperation to convince the people that the party is corrupt. The complete and irrefutable answer to all of their malicious declarations is the fact that when the Republicans are in power the state is prosperous, and when they are displaced, even for but a year or two, the injurious effect is at once felt by every trade and occupation.

"Their party, whether national or state, and its allies, cannot point to a single progressive act which it has advocated for the past 40 years. Its only work in all of these years has been to oppose.

"If it had had its way this nation would now be a disjointed collection of states, the curse of slavery would still exist, and be a competitor of paid labor. The currency would be debased. Exports of American manufacturers would have ceased long ago. Labor would be unemployed. Industrial expansion would never have been possible.

HONORABLE REPUBLICAN NAMES.

"Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Arthur, Harrison and McKinley would never have been Presidents of the United States, and every Republican senator and member of congress would have been thrown out of office.

"No Republican judge, whether local, district, superior or supreme could have held office.

"No legislator, who was a Republican or governor, or other officer, who held to Republican principles could have been elected. They have opposed every one of these men in the last 40 years, precisely as they now oppose Judge Potter and Mr. Harris.

"They have predicted every calamity that can come to a people, as the result of the election of their opponents, and in every instance they have been shown to have been mistaken. They have called all of them, from Lincoln to McKinley, every vile name that could be invented, and now simply continue to use, in regard to the present candidates, the same old methods of vilification. They never learn.

"Even experience, which is generally a successful teacher to the dullest, has failed to instruct them. They have gone on the assumption that the people are, if not fools, at least easily fooled, and that assertion, vituperation and noise, persisted in, will take the place, and do the work of arguments and facts.
